An unusual offer—the one that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Unusual, but made in good faith. It's a reward of $500 for an incurable case of Catarrh. If you have one, the money's for you. But you can't know whether you have one, till you've tried Dr. Sage's Remedy. What's incurable by any other means, yields to that. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it cures the worst cases, no matter of how long standing. That's the reason the money can be offered. There's a risk about it, to be sure. But it's so small that the proprietors are willing to take it.

The symptoms of catarrh are, headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in the ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few symptoms present at once.

RED-HOT POLITICS

Some Warm Times Ahead in Louisiana.

Bullets and Ballots the Cry in the South.

Winchesters Make a Sudden Appearance,

With Evidence That They Will Be Used.

Two Political Factions Sharpening Up Their Knives and Cleaning Up Their Guns in Anticipation of the Coming Elections.

New Orleans, Feb. 6.—The arrival of about 500 rifles and 2,600 rounds of ammunition, consigned to Col. Crandall, chairman of the democratic state committee, on the steamship El Paso, from New York, was noted yesterday morning by the New Delta, accompanied by strong editorial remarks, concluding as follows:

"To the Winchester in the hands of the hireling place the Winchester in the hands of the freeman. Let every crack of a lottery rifle wake as an answering echo the report of an anti-lottery gun.

"If the hoodlums of New Orleans are upon the streets of the city armed with weapons placed in thier hands by this lottery committee, sweep them from the face of the earth.

"If the streets of New Orleans are to be reddened with blood let it not be alone the blood of her good citizens. If wholesale murder has been resolved upon by the lottery, let the people resolve upon wholesale executions."

In reply the Evening States says that Mr. Foster, of St. Mary, the candidate of the antis for governor, was the first man who raised the cry of rifles in this contest.

"Every five hundred bill" (meaning every pro-lottery vote), he said in substance, "was to be met with a $25 rifle."

In view of these facts, argues the States, it is not astonishing that the democratic committee have taken the necessary steps to protect the freedom of opinion and of the ballot.

"If they had failed to do so they would not be fit to hold the leadership of a party of American citizens.

"Ballot against ballot, rifle against rifle, and by memories of men who fought and bled for our constitutions, shall be rifles against fraud and rascality."

It is expected that Gov. Nichols will seize the rifles.

In an interview concerning these arms Col. Crandall says: "Yes, it is a fact that these arms have come to New Orleans addressed to me as chairman of the democratic executive committee. There has been absolutely no attempt made to conceal their shipment, and there is likewise no effort being made by us to disguise why the arms have been secured.

"We are providing ourselves with them simply to protect ourselves against any scheme, armed or otherwise, to deny us a free ballot and a fair count in the coming election.

"Since the nominating convention at Baton Rouge we have been met on all sides with statements from the friends and supporters of Mr. Foster that it was for war to the knife and knife to the hilt, and that the machinery in the hands of the existing state administration was to be used in counting in the Foster ticket and in counting out the McEnery ticket."

Believing, therefore, that the state militia and the election machinery under the control of the present state administration, are to be employed in frustrating, if necessary, a free expression of the public will, we determined on the principle that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, to take such means as would protect us from an illegal and unwarranted interference with our rights under the law.

"As I said before, we are not endeavoring to conceal anything whatever. The arms have been openly shipped and there will be another consignment shortly, of which our friends may take notice if they desire. There is no intention on the part of the regular democrats to precipitate trouble. There is no desire to provoke the shedding of blood. It has been our aim to secure a perfectly peaceable election and to abide by the result. All we have asked for and all we mean to secure is the privilege of every man to vote as he chooses in the coming election and the assurance that his vote will be counted as it is cast.

"We have never intended to bulldoze or bluff, but we are firm in our determination not to be bulldozed or bluffed. Our preparations are simply with a view to insuring an honest election, and we have merely accepted in earnest the threat made at Baton Rouge by the state house and Foster ring ticket that the administration will elect the Foster ticket even if a resort to an unfair ballot and a dishonest count are necessary—a contingency we are determined shall not arise, and which will not arise unless we are disappointed in the manhood of this state."

THEY WANT RELIEF.

Newfoundland's Tale of Suffering.

A Petition to the Queen to Look Into the Administration of Government Affairs.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 6.—The following numerously signed message from the west coast of Newfoundland has been cabled to Lord Knutsford:

"We entreat your lordship to lay the following facts before the Queen's most excellent majesty

"Notwithstanding the fact that a notice appeared in the Newfoundland Royal Gazette on the 10th of March last, stating that no factory not in operation on the first of July, 1889, was to be allowed to be operated, instructions were telegraphed here on the 13th of March by the premier of Newfoundland, Sir Wm. Whiteway, to "go ahead," which instructions were considered as law, and were acted upon by many packers who otherwise would not have engaged in the lobster industry.

"When her majesty's ships arrived here it was found that the instructions issued by the leaders of Newfoundland government were in direct opposition to the modus vivendi and all new factories were closed. Consequently the capital invested in this enterprise was lost. Many families were thrown out of employment and left destitute.

"On the other hand, we are in a measure debarred from engaging in cod fishing by the French, who occupy the principal fishing stations on this shore, and if by chance we are allowed to cure a catch, a high duty is imposed upon our fish by the Canadian government in consequence of pugnacious attitude by the Newfoundland government towards Canada, which is the only available market for our codfish, herring and lobsters.

"Owing, we believe, to the lack of diplomatic skill displayed by Colonial Secretary Bond, whilst endeavoring to negotiate a treaty with the United States, which would meet the approval of her majesty's government, we are shut out from a market of 60,000,000 of people.

"On the 9th ult. it was proclaimed by his excellency that an extra duty had been placed on farm products and other importations from Canada. Previous to this discrimination, we were groaning under heavy taxation imposed by the Newfoundland government, and now we see nothing ahead of us but starvation.

"We therefore respectfully beseech her majesty to give us relief or proclaim Newfoundland a crown colony, as we are convinced that the present government of Newfoundland is totally incapable of governing the island."

It is claimed that the dispatch was prompted by politicians opposed to the present government of Newfoundland.

As there was no one at the house except a boy he could render no assistance, but as soon as they left he gave the alarm to the neighbors, who organized a posse for the purpose of pursuit.

Officers from Flagstaff reached there soon afterward and it is thought her rescue will soon be effected.

DESIRE A LARGE BONUS.

Electric Railroad People Explain Their Scheme.

It Will be a Cold Day When St. Louis Contributes a Hundred Thousand Dollars.

St. Louis, Feb. 6.—The projectors of the proposed Chicago and St. Louis electric railway appeared before the executive committee of the Autumnal Festivities association last night and explained the modus operandi of the road.

Dr. Wellington Adams was the principal speaker. He made an elaborate address, setting forth the advantages to be gained by St. Louis and requesting that the association raise a bonus of $100,000 to be given to the projectors of said railway in the event of their causing this high speed electric railroad to be built and in practical operation between the two cities in time for the world's fair.

He said it would cost $5,000,000 to construct the road.

ROBBED THE OLD MAN.

H. Clay Bascom's Private Secretary Was a Thief.

Troy, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Charles H. Benedict, for several years confidential bookkeeper for H. Clay Bascom, the prospective prohibitionist nominee for president, has disappeared under a cloud.

When last heard from he was in Atlanta, Ga. He was a prominent member of the Methodist church, which appointed a committee to investigate the matter, as Mr Bascom refused to give any reason for the young man s disappearance to outsiders.

He gave the church committee, however, the desired information.

It was to the effect that Benedict for years had been using a system of false entries. He also resorted to writing Mr. Bascom's name on notes, and neglected to pay insurance premiums. Just how much the shortage amounts to is not known, but it is expected to reach many thosand dollars.

CH.EAN WAR HISTORY.

HowCapt. Schley Made Ready to Fight,

AndNow Gets His Wings Clipped for it.

His Ruest to be Returned to the Bamore is Ignored and He Given Another Less Desirable Charge.

Washiton, Feb. 6.—An interesting incident ionnection with the Chilean difficulty 1 not before been made pub. After attack on the sailors of the Baltimo excitement ran high in Valparaiso,mors were thick and frequent here thahe Chileans intended to attack the Bahore.

The al demonstrations on their part were vethreatening and of such a character G Capt. Schley felt impelled to put his p in order for a hot fight, if it was forcupon him.

Accorg to the reports a combined attack to be made upon the Baltimore bthe Chilean cruisers, the Esmeralda 1 the Almirante Cochran and the torp vessels. The idea of the Chils wwith their force they could make a plete wreck of the Baltimore in a shtime. Capt. Schley did not think so.

At any e he was ready to give them a warm ption. On either side of the Baltimored between the range of her guns ande Chilean cruisers, lay the German n-of-war, Leipzig, and the English nof-war, Melopomen.

Capt. Sy had determined, in case of attack, let the torpedo boats go in the beging, and direct his attention to the woif disabling the cruisers. But he wanteo have them in the line of his guns.

Getting his gig he first boarded the German nof-war and stated his views and wishe her commander. The German captapromptly said he would get out of theay at once and give the Baltimore fair show. Capt. Schley then went the Melopomen. Her captain did nhow the spirit of accommodation of German. He said his ship was in verood anchorage and he did not see whe should move.

After so further conversation he consented comply with the request of Capt. Sy and said that he, too, would get of the way. As it happened, theileans either abandoned their attentto attack or never entertained it, erwise there would doubtless have rred one of the most remarkable il engagements of history.

Althoughvas announced only yesterday that C.Schley had asked to be retained in cand of the Baltimore and expected tove to-day for San Francisco to rae his former command, orders madblic to-day are of an entirely diffel character.

Capt. Schs detached from the Baltimore and ued to duty as inspector of the Third ict lighthouse board, succeeding Cal. F. Picking, who is ordered to thmand of the Charleston.

Capt. Ge P. Remey, at present in command o Charleston, is detached and given tvonths' leave of absence.

Capt. Schs succeeded in command of the Balte by Capt. Wm. Whitehead.

PORTER IS ON THE RACK

The House Looking After the Census.

Serious Charges Made on the Floor of the House.

Thousands of Dollars of Good Money Have Been Thrown Away and Now More is Wanted.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The house, yesterday afternoon, went into committee of the whole on the census deficiency bill.

Mr. Sayers, of Texas (in charge of the bill) made an explanation as to its provisions and brought a charge of extravagance against the administration of the census bureau. He said that hundreds of men and women who never ought to have been employed had been employed in that office at the instance of members of congress.

Had the superintendent of the census been left to operate his bureau without pressure from the outside to put in office a large number of incompetent persons the expenditures would have been very much less.

Mr. Henderson, of Iowa—Do you refer to the number or the quality.

Mr. Sayers—To both.

Mr. Henderson inquired whether the gentleman had any evidence to justify his statement.

Mr. Sayers insisted that he had. That evidence had come to him from outside sources. It had been stated to him that salaries of incompetent persons had been largely increased. There had been a useless expenditure of public money.

Mr. Henderson contended that the office had been economically administered, and asked Mr. Sayers to hear him out in this contention. This Mr. Sayers declined to do, stating that from the information he had received he could not indorse the declaration.

Many of the employes who were drawing a salary of $100 a month were unable to discharge their duties.

He believed that a committee should be appointed to investigate the administration of the office. Such an investigation would justify him in his statement as to the extravagance of the bureau.

Mr. Dingley, of Maine, regretted that the gentleman from Texas had made charges against the superintedent of the census that had never been made before the committee of appropriations. It seemed to him that such charges by the gentleman (from an anonymous source) should have been brought to the attention of the committee. He was sure that had this been done, the minority of the committee would have insisted that an investigation be made.

It was unfair to the superintendent that such charges should be made against him on the floor of the house. If there had been any mismanagement of the census office, if any employes were unfit to perform their duties, these allegations were matters which should have been brought to the attention of the committee, and not launched upon the house when the members of the committee could not have an opportunity of inquiring whether there was any foundation for the charges.

He believed the superintendent had faithfully performed the duty that had been entrusted to him. If the expenditures of the census bureau had been increased this was due to the fact that congress had imposed upon it the new and unheard of duty of inquiring into the private business of citizens, and compelling them to disclose the amounts of their farm mortgages.

Mr. Dungan, of Ohio, opposed an appropriation for the census bureau until the charges made against it had been answered satisfactorily. It had been said that tons and tons of statistics had been destroyed after compilation, and that a lot of punching machines (the invention of a relative) which could have been purchased for $10 had been employed at a high royalty.

Mr. Cooper, of Indiana, criticised the census office on the ground that it had discriminated against certain limestone industries of Indiana and in favor of others. In the taking of the census great inaccuracy, if not dishonesty, had been committed as far as the limestone workings were concerned.

COLLINGWOOD BLAZE.

Collingwood, O., Feb. 6.—Wrinker's hotel and four adjoining buildings were destroyed by fire to-day. Aid was sent from Cleveland and the fire put out after $30,000 worth of property had been destroyed.

TO THE COURT OF APPEALS

Judge Foster's Decision Must Be Reviewed.

He Regrets That the Evidence Did Not Show Who Was Guilty of Killing Riggin.

New York, Feb. 6.—Special cable to the Herald from Valparaiso says that Judge of Crimes Foster says he has rendered sentence in the Baltimore cases in strict accordance with Chilean law.

The only regret he feels is that there was no direct evidence showing the immediate cause of Riggin's death. He did his utmost, he says, to fix the responsibility upon some one for the killing.

The court of appeals, which will review the action of Judge Foster, will reconvene next month.

On all sides there are renewed expressions of hope that there will be a speedy resumption of friendly intercourse between Chile and the United States.

BOUND FOR MEXICO.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 6.—It has been learned that the Jones Bros. the cotton brokers who disappeared from this city last week, were seen by a commercial traveler on a southbound train on the Texas Pacific railroad Saturday night. They told the traveling man that they intended going to Hot Springs for their health, but it is believed they were en route to Mexico.

LOW PRICE OF COTTON.

It is Causing a Panic in the South.

It Has Not Been Worth So Little Money in Forty-Seven Years—A Planter Driven to Suicide.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 6.—Farmers in this section are desperate over the low prices of cotton.

Farmer Hall, of Coffee county, on learning last Tuesday that cotton was still declining, set his crop on fire and then committed suicide by jumping over a bluff.

John Williams, a farmer of Limestone, took his seed cotton to Athens to sell, but because the price offered was so low he drove to the center of the bridge crossing Elk river and dumped his load overboard.

The staple is lower here to-day than for forty-seven years past.

AUSTRIA AT THE FAIR.

Bacquehem Will Be President of the Commission.

Vienna, Feb. 6.—The nominations of the officials who are to compose the Chicago world's fair commission will be made within a few days. It is known, however, that the Marquis de Bacquehem, minister of commerce, will be president of the commission and that M. Isbary and M. Mauthner will be vice-presidents.

An executive committee is being formed in order to assist the commission in furthering the work of providing for a proper representation of Austria at the world's fair. The president of the chamber of commerce of this city will have control of the auxiliary arrangements.

ARID LANDS.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The house committee on irrigation of arid lands, this morning decided in favor of a plan to cede the arid lands to the states for reclamation.

As to the methods and restrictions to be adopted the committee is undecided.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

Business Continues of Good Proportions.

The West Rapidly Taking Trade Away From the East—Events of the Past Week.

New York, Feb. 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

In spite of much dullness and complaint in some important branches, trade is gradually enlarging. The east does not get the full benefit, because western business is largely met by western distributing centers, and that alone is increasing heavily, while southern trade, which is more largely met by distribution from the east, is unusually dull. But the west is steadily increasing orders for manufactured products, and is likely to buy more largely in the next five months than ever before. Eastern consumption is also fairly up to the maximum, as labor is well employed. The stringency at the south, owing to the over-production of cotton and hurtful speculation in the past, is at present the only force retarding the general improvement. Exports of merchandise continue to greatly exceed last year's for five months at New York by about 37 per cent., while in the value of imports the increase is very slight.

Speculation in products has been more active, but in spite of the abundance of money the tendency of prices is lower. Wheat fell to 99 3-8c here, but recovered over a cent and after sales of 33,000,000 is 1 cent lower than a week ago. Western receipts diminish, but exports diminish still more. Corn closed only an eighth higher after sales of 15,000,000 bushels and oats 3-8c higher, but pork products are a shade lower. Cotton is a sixteenth lower for spot and February has sold below 7 cents; receipts continue enormous. Oil has fallen 2 cents, but coffee is a fraction stronger. In lead trade is moderate, and in tin tame, without change, but copper is weaker, lake at 10 3-4c. Silver has also fallen to about the lowest price ever quoted, 41.50d per ounce, recovering slightly to 41.62d.

The great industries make progress in spite of low prices and a production which seemes to threaten a reaction. Pig iron shows a little concession at Philadelphia and some shading here by southern concerns and bar is as dull as ever with a light demand for plates. Structural iron is unsettled by the collapse of a steel beam combination and the price has fallen to 1-2c. But the coming expenditures by the great railroads promise an unusual demand and news comes of the opening of additional furnaces. At the higher price demanded by the agents coal is exceedingly dull.

The boot and shoe business is getting better with more orders, but in some cases prices are shaded a little. More activity is seen in dry goods and a large number of western buyers are doing a fair business. The demand for spring goods is growing, but clothiers are still in the dark. Cottons are affected by the poor southern trade, but prices of some prints and sheetings have been advanced and orders for knit goods are fully as large as a year ago.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 319, as compared with 297 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 306.

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.

The Detroit Evening Journal in the Hands of the Sheriff.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—Sheriff Hanley seized the Evening Journal yesterday afternoon on two chattel mortgages for William Livingston, jr.

One mortgage is for $35,000 to Bankers Ives & Sons and the other for $25,000 to World's Fair President Palmer. There is also a large amount of floating debt and the paper is thought to be $100,000 behind.

Mr. Livingston will assume the management of the property at once, but it is generally known that he is merely a figurehead for Mr. Palmer in the transaction. The paper will continue republican in politics and no changes are announced, although Mr. Brearly, the head of the establishment, will step out.

HOTEL BURNED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 6.—A special to the Journal from Bathgate, S. D., says that a $30,000 fire at that place this morning destroyed a number of buildings including the Commercial hotel. It was the work of incendiaries.

A CAREER OF CRIME.

How Fitzsimmons Went From Bad to Worse.

He Was a Bright Boy in School, but Got Into Bad Company, and the Rest Was Easy.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 6.—W. A. Ellerbeck, a compositor on the Evening Dispatch of this city, was a step-brother of Fred C. Fitzsimmons, who committed suicide at New Orleans. In an interview with a reporter of the United Press this morning Mr. Ellerbeck said:

"Mr. Pinkerton is mistaken when he says Fitzsimmons was 38 years of age. He was just my age when we attended school together at Brockville, Canada, and I am 32. We were playmates at school before my mother married his father.

"Fred was one of the brightest scholars in the public school at that time. When he left home he went to St. Catharines, where he clerked in a dry goods store. He got into bad company there, and was implicated in a forgery case.

"My stepfather interceded in his behalf and cleared him. From St. Catharines he went to Chicago where he clerked in a dry goods store, leaving there for Hot Springs, Ark., some months later. He had quite a career in Texas before he again returned to Canada.

"I have not heard much about him in past years except through letters from home, my relatives occasionally receiving a letter from him. I don't think he had anything to do with the Snell murder, although I do not know where he was when it occurred."

Mr. Ellerbeck showed the reporter a photograph of Fitzsimmons taken about five years ago which was sent him by his mother.

TO MAKE A GOOD RACE.

Georgia Democrats Will Soon be in Line.

The Third Party the Greatest Enemy.

An Early Convention Will be Called and a Thorough Organization Perfected at Once.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 6.—Chairman Atkinson, of the democratic state executive committee, created a sensation by issuing a call for a meeting of the committee on March 2 to take immediate action in calling a state convention and preparing for the coming campaign.

This call was accompanied by an interview in which Atkinson points out the necessity for prompt action in view of the growth of the third party. He says:

"The people's party has not been formulated with the hope of controlling the white vote of the state, but with the idea that they will be enabled to attract a coworking element now in the republican party, and in this way snatch the state from democratic control.

"Should such a scheme succeed, its effect will be to put Georgia back 25 years and thus we will be confronted with a problem that we fought immediately after the war when a few carpet-baggers took advantage of the demoralized condition and gave political supremacy in this state to ignorance and vice.

"The difference in caste of the reconstruction leader and the men who are at the head of the people's party is the threatening feature. The men who are now leaving the democratic party represent a better element than the crowd who headed the ignorant horde after the war, but the great majority of the people's party support in this state will necessarily come from the republican party and this element will give color to the entire organization.

"However, if the rank and file of these people, who are bone of our bone, and whose interests are identical with the aims of the democratic party in the south, could realize the dangerous consequence of political division, I believe many of them would refuse to follow further the lead of these disruptionists.

"Will the alliance go with them? There are no people who can be more interested in the moral, social, intellectual and material welfare of the state than the farmers who compose the alliance of Georgia.

"They know that whenever the balance of power is given to the element which now composes the republican party in this state, social life in the country will become impossible, the value of property will be deteriorated, and our state government, which is now controlled by intelligence, will be in the hands of a few whites and the large ignorant element to which I have alluded.

"Knowing this, the solid element of the farmers will, in the main, stay with the democratic party. Many of its members who feel like going with the third party on the flush, will, upon deliberation, refuse to turn against their best and truest political friends.

"The people's party movement combines the greenback element, which is very much stronger than many suspect; the independent element, also potential in some places, and those who are naturally with it as a result of the recent agitation. These forces will give the people's party a strong following in isolated localities."

FAVORS MORE PENSIONS.

Total Deafness Should Be Graded Higher.

General Bussey Makes a Strong Argument Before the Senate Committee.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Gen. Bussey, assistant secretary of the interior, has been before the senate committee on pensions, and supported the argument recently made by Wallace Foster, of Indianapolis, in favor of increasing the pension for total deafness to $72 per month.

The general said the rate should be largely increased—made the same as for total physical helplessness, instead of $40, as at present.

The general made a statement that startled the members when he said he had before him 50 appeals from widows whose husbands had been killed by being run over by cars or otherwise, being totally deaf.

A careless driver sees a man in front, and presuming that he will get out of the way, drives on, and the unfortunate is killed.

The mortality among totally deaf pensioners, Gen. Bussey said, is from ten to twenty times as great as among other classes.

As to the proportionate rate to be paid for less than total deafness, the general said it was difficult to adjust that. Severe deafness in one ear or slight deafness in both is fairly pensioned, in comparison with other claimants, as the law now stands.

Mr. Foster, who has been here all the week, leaves for home to-morrow with the belief that the committee will recommend the increased rate asked for.

CARVALHO IMPEACHED.

A Great Sensation in the Cortes.

He Loaned Thirteen Million Francs to a Railroad Without the Authority of His Government.

Lisbon, Feb. 6.—The dismissal yesterday of Senhor Pieto Carvalho, the administrator-general of customs, after a cabinet council is the sensation of the day at Portugal, as the disgraced official was one of the most important officers in the country.

Shortly after the dismissal of the administrator-general Senhor Arrego, in the Cortes, demanded the impeachment of the ex-minister, and a committee was appointed to take testimony and decide whether or not several other prominent officials were to be impeached for the share they are supposed to have taken in connection with the railroad and similar scandals.

Senhor Carvalho was much affected when his impeachment was demanded. Replying to those who were clamoring for his punishment, he said that he supposed that his political career was ended, but, he added, if all his combinations for guarding the country against financial disaster had been realized, people would have applauded instead of condemning him.

Finally, Senhor Carvalho declared that upon three occasions he had saved the country from bankruptcy by securing the paying of coupons which were falling due and to meet which there were no funds provided.

The impeachment of Senhor Carvalho grew out of the latter's action, while occupying the position of minister of finance in advancing on his own responsibility the sum of 13,000,000 francs to the Royal railroad, of which he was chairman.

It was not until last month that Senhor Carvalho informed the government of the fact that he had taken the step referred to, and soon after, the whole matter was laid before the cortes, as the government declined to accept any responsibility in the case.

In the meanwhile, Senhor Carvalho resigned, and his action led to the resignation of the ministry.

Senhor Carvalho, some time later, explained to the cortes the steps he had taken during his term of office, saying that he had arranged for payments amounting for 17,000 cantos of reis, though when he went into office only 600 cantos of reis were available.

SPIKES FOR BREAKWATER.

Serious Charges Against Maj. Overman.

Taking Evidence on the Purchase of Two Dozen Pearl Handled Pocket Knives.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 6.—In to-day's session of the Overman court martial trial, Major Overman admitted that he had failed to account to the government for $234, on one of the specifications, but declared that he had not converted the money to his own use; also that the United States would not lose anything by the transaction.

This afternoon the court began taking testimony on the specification charging Overman with having purchased two dozen of pearl handled pocket knives and returning bills for the same to the treasury department as "spikes for the breakwater."

During the storm the steamship shipped several heavy seas, which resulted in severe injury to two of her crew and minor injuries to several others. One of the Etruria's crew had his leg broken during the hurricane and another man had his skull fractured.

BOLD BURGLARS

Enter a Residence by Climbing up the Porch.

A burglar entered the residence of Geo. Laskey on Collingwood avenue last evening, by climbing up onto the porch and entering through a second story window. He secured a seal skin sacque when he was discovered by a neighbor named Williams, who gave chase. The burglar promptly dropped the sacque and ran.

Two men were standing on the opposite side of the street and Mr. Williams called to them to stop the thief. Instead of doing this one of them pointed a revolver at Mr. Williams and ordered him to stop, after which the trio made their escape.

FOUND HIS FOLKS.

He was an old man, with scant white hair, and he leaned on a staff and walked with difficulty, and no one at the Lion inn or thereabouts knew him.

"My name is Seth Kingsland," he said to the landlord in the high key which deaf or old people use.

"Can't say as I ever see you before, friend," said the landlord in a kindly way.

"I was born here," continued the old man, "and all my folks were living here when I went away."

"How long might that be, friend?" asked the landlord.

"Nigh on to fifty years—I was young then."

"And I wasn't born."

Then the old man asked after a number of families by name, but they had all either moved away or died.

The traveler ordered a room, and after partaking of a light supper retired to rest. He said no more about himself, but as one and another dropped in at the Lion that evening the landlord told them of his aged guest. One man said:

"Maybe old Simon Rathburn would remember his folks."

"I never thought of him," said the landlord, "call in on your way home, and tell old Simon to come around to-morrow morning."

The following morning a delighted old man trotted into the tavern, chuckling between each word:

"Know Seth Kingsland?—knew him like a brother—he! he! Why, we was chums. I guess he an't as spy as I be—ho! ho! Why say," confidentially to the landlord, "we was both in love with the same gal—he! he! didn't eyther one of us git her—ho! ho! Know Seth? I should say I did."

"I'll call him," said the landlord: "he'll be mighty glad to see one of the old crowd," and he went up-stairs and rapped on the door of his aged guest.

No answer. He rapped again and looked in. The morning sunlight gave a rosy tinge to the white face, but the landlord knew as soon as he looked at him that the old traveler had found his folks.—Mrs. M. L. Rayne, in the Chicago Times.

MME. BLAVATSKY.

All the world knows Mme. Helene Petrovna (Hahn) Blavatsky, and since her death it may be occultly said that both worlds are equally cognizant of her renowned existence.

And yet it is true that very few knew her as she really was. She disliked the name Blavatsky, but was proud of the distinction it gave her as the widow of a general in the Russian army. Always very social and companionable when not "possessed," she delighted all who visited her. She was feminine in the extreme in some traits, but masculine in others, with the natural delicacy of a true woman and the stern, unyielding persistency of a man, as occasion required. Her private life was known to a few intimate friends who enjoyed her hospitality, which was always free and generous. She had a tender regard for others in their likes and dislikes; even their whims were respected, and she never indulged in idle curiosity.

Mme. Blavatsky was the victim of a cruel slander for many years, and compelled me to silence when a word might have sufficed to clear her. Her patience under attacks was very great, although at times she broke out in picturesque and florid diction not intended for print.

Her faith in herself was profound. As a student she was ever at work and tireless, never satisfied. More light, more facts, advanced theories, different hypotheses, further suggestions, always pushing on toward an ideal.

Her face was full, moon-shaped—the outline so prized in the orient; she had bright, clear eyes, mild as a gazelle's in repose, but flashing like a serpent's in anger or excitement. Her youthful figure, and until she was 30, was supple, muscular and well rounded, fit to delight an artist. Her hands and feet were so small and delicately molded as to suggest the fullness and softness of youth, and they never lost entirely those qualities.

An editor whom I know very well said that a single visit to her left an impression on his mind that he could not throw off, although he did not accept one of her philosophical theories or believe a word said about her miracles. He also said she was an intellectual wonder, a reader of enormous capacity and retentive memory. All who knew her intimately agreed with this estimate, except those who believed in her alleged occult powers, and they accepted the thaumaturgy as a thing of course, as though it was a sort of mystical exhalation from her spiritual head.—A. L. Rawson, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for February.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat market 6 pence to 9 pence per quarter higher; corn quoted as higher. Liverpool wheat one penny per 100 pounds dearer; corn one and one-quarter pence up; demand stated to be light.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 379,724 bu, compared with 231,257 bu on the same day last year.

Chicago "Tribune."

Further lake charters were reported for 80,000 bu corn, with rates quoted on the basis of 4c for corn and 4 1-4c for wheat to Buffalo. This makes a total of 250,000 bu room taken this week.

The northwestern railway has sent orders to many country stations to accept no more grain to be shipped east of Chicago in its cars, owing to the blockade on the eastern roads. "This fact of the western roads shutting down in this manner," said a receiver, "probably means smaller receipts of grain for a few days, especially as roads in the country are often nearly impassable just now."

The quotation question is coming up again soon. The element that believes in sending out Chicago prices to whoever wants them is increasing in strength. The advocates of a return to the old system say that outsiders are now forced to go to a bucket-shop to get Chicago prices, and that it would be much better to have them give to all commission houses asking for them. The directors are said not to be unfavorable to a change, and it will surprise no one on the inside to have the matter settled in the near future.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 319, against 297 the previous week, and 306 for the corresponding week in 1891.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 100,000 bu less than yesterday. Outside of Minneapolis and Duluth, at five points, the receipts are only 116,146 bu.

The receipts of grain this week at eight principal western points were: Wheat, 2,637,000 bu; corn, 3,228,000 bu; oats, 1,597,000 bu. Previous week: Wheat, 2,211,000 bu; corn, 3,476,000 bu; oats, 2,136,000 bu. In the week corresponding to this in 1891, the receipts were: Wheat, 1,375,000 bu; corn, 1,349,000 bu; oats, 1,191,000 bu and showing an increase this week over 1891 of 1,288,000 bu of wheat, 1,879,000 bu of corn and 406,000 bu of oats.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were wheat 93,623 bu, and flour to an aggregate of 350,000 bu. Exports of corn 204,756 bu and of oats 37,479 bu.

The exports this week at four Atlantic ports have been wheat 1,458,000 bu, corn 3,211,000 bu, oats 232,000 bu.

Bradstreet's makes the export of wheat from both coasts 4,700,000 bu. Previous week 3,557,000 bu.

Bradstreet's make a decrease in available wheat in the United States, Canada, Europe and afloat for Europe, about 1,300,000 bu during January, compared with 6,000,000 bu in January, 1891, 9,000,000 bu in 1890 and 11,000,00 bu in 1889. In United States and Canada the decrease is about 6,000,000 bu, and in Europe and afloat the increase is over 4,000,000 bu.

The sensitiveness of the wheat market is illustrated by the fact that the least unfavorable crop reports abroad at once produce effect on prices. It is no wise strange. A diminished production this year in any important wheat growing country would send up prices. The critical period for the crop is near at hand. In our country there has been too much freezing and thawing of late, and if it continues the back counties will be heard from. Severe weather for crops here or abroad would make more than usual excitement. Our crop is now bare of snow everywhere, and prices for 60 days may depend much upon weather eventualities. We cannot but believe that prices, for all reasons, are on the up grade, and with natural daily fluctuations tend to advance. So mote it be.

The Markets To-day.

Beerbohm's 3:30 cable quotes wheat futures in Liverpool February 2 1-2c, and late monthly 1 1-4c to 1 1-2 higher. Corn, 1-2c to 1c higher. Paris is again reported 2 1-2c bus higher. Ocean freight has declined 1-2c bus to-day.

The wheat market has been an unsteady one to-day, and within 1-2c to 1c has fluctuated frequently. It looks to us very much like a room-trader's contest. The bears are fighting desperately lest a higher range of prices be fairly and fully established in all markets, and compel them to come in. In New York the market closed at 12 o'clock. February and May wheat closed 5-8c higher. February and May corn, 3-8c higher. February and May oats unchanged.

After New York adjourned the wheat market at Chicago became weak, and a half hour before the close made a break of about 3-4c on May wheat.

Corn has been about steady, closing better in New York than in Chicago.

In Chicago.—February wheat gained 3-8c and May lost 1-8c. February corn closed steady and May 1-4c lower. February oats unchanged.

In Toledo.—The wheat market has been moderately active, with considerable fluctuation. Prices at one time showed a gain of 1c, but after the decline at Chicago about 3-4c of it was lost, and the market closed at a gain of 1-4c. On the call May wheat sold at 96 1-2c. After the call February sold at 93 3-4c and closed at 93 1-2c. May sold at 96 3-8c to 97 1-2c, and closed at 96 1-2c.

Cash wheat was only dealt in moderately. No. 2 soft sold at 94 to 93 1-2c, and closed at 93 1-2c, a loss of 1-4c; No. 3 soft sold at 9 1-2c; No. 2 red and white at 92c.

Corn—No. 2 sold at 40 1-2c; No. 3 at 39 1-2c to 39 3-4c; No. 2 for May at 43 1-2c; No. 3 yellow at 39 1-2c to 40c. No business reported in oats or rye.

Clover seed was dull. For prime country seed $5 60 was bid, and March was sold at $5 60, and closed with sellers at that. On the call March sold at $5 65.

JOHN GUNCKEL AND FISH.

John Gunckel received a letter from Edward P. Doyle, secretary of the American Fisheries society, requesting him to prepare a paper to be read before the society at a meeting to be held Wednesday and Thursday, May 26 and 27. If there is any subject that Mr. Gunckel is thoroughly posted on it is fishing, and if John prepares a paper, which he undoubtedly will, his hearers will learn something of the manner in which Buckeyes lure and land the gamy representatives of the finny tribe.

THE GOOD SISTERS' ASSEMBLY.

Joan of Arc assembly, No. 1006K. of L., was in session at Clark's hall last night. There is a good deal of sickness among the members, and the attendance was not large. The committee on last Friday's dance reported that the dancing's receipts netted a goodly sum for the treasury. It was decided to hold the meetings for the next two months on Saturday instead of Friday evenings, to give the members who desire an opportunity to attend the lectures on English literature, which will be the next series in university extension course. The next meeting will be held on Saturday evening, March 5, and will be open to friends of the assembly. There will be short addresses from 8 to 9 on labor and other topics of interest, after which social hour will be enjoyed, with cards and other games for entertainment.

LECTURE BY FATHER BURNS.

Those who have had the pleasure of hearing Father Burns will be pleased to know that he has consented to deliver a lecture on "Jamaica and the Later Discoveries of Columbus." Anything new on this subject is particularly interesting at this time, when the approaching celebration in memory of the great discoverer is turning the attention, not only of America, but of Italy, Spain, Portugal and England, towards taking an active part in the great anniversary which introduced a new world to civilization. Jamaica was among the first islands touched upon, and is invested with much historical interest not familiar to many readers. Father Burns will be able to give much information entirely new, which he had especial opportunities for gaining, and also details of his own experience and observations during his five years as missionary and chaplain to the British navy in the West Indies.

The lecture will be given during the last week of February at Wheeler's opera house. Due notice will be given of date and of sale of tickets.

THE MATHIAS ORCHESTRA.

This week the Mathias orchestra gave a concert at Monroe, and that the people were delighted is shown in the following, taken from the local newspaper the Commercial:

"One of the finest musical entertainments ever given in Monroe was furnished by the Mathias Orchestra Wednesday evening. Their hours of playing gave two hours of solid comfort. Gilmore's company never did nothing finer than the Egyptian Midnight Parade, and the closing grand medley, America, stirred every drop of patriotic blood in the audience. Mr. Leibius was very pleasing in his tenor solos, was Mr. Carl E. Wuerfel in his basso solos, and both were rewarded with hearty encores. One of the finest features was the violin playing of Mr. A. E. Trosd one of his responses to a recall was delicate and exquisite a musical gem as was ever heard in this city. This company is to be complimented, not only on their excellent training and ability, but also on their fine appearance as an organization. Their stage deportment was a model of decorum. It is to be regretted that their audience was not larger, but it was not, was a loss to those present as well as to the company.'

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Meriden, Conn., Feb. 6.—[illegible]'s block, a four-story brick structure on State street, was gutted by fire at 5 o'clock this morning. The building was occupied by Cashen's plumbing establishment and a number of societies. The loss is about $40,000, with about $10,000 insurance.

EULOGY DAY.

Washington, Feb. 6.—There was a small attendance in the house this morning, both on the floor and in the galleries, the day being set apart for the delivery of eulogies in respect to the memory of the late Hon. W. H. F. Lee, of Virginia.

UP AND DOING.

The advice to be up and doing
Is all very well in its way,
If we are the right thing doing
And our deeds be in the light of day;
A better precept would not keep
If we're busy with honest labor.
But 'tis better far than to be fast asleep
Than be up and doing our neighbor,
—South Register.

THE HEIR-PRESUMPTIVE.

It is the late duke's younger brother George who now steps into the vacant place as heir-presumptive to the British crown. There was only a difference of two years between their ages, and until the Duke of Clarence went to the university the two brothers, though presenting the greatest possible contrast to each other both morally and physically, were inseparable. Full of vivacity, spirit and go he has always been regarded from childhood up as the enfant terrible of the royal family, and innumerable are the stories related of his wicked practical jokes and everlasting scrapes.

The mere mention of his name in England is sufficient to cause the features of John Bull to relax and to develop into a broad grin. He is as noted for his facility of getting into mischief as his elder brother was for keeping out of it; and it is possibly this which has endowed him with a popularity among the masses that was withheld from the Duke of Clarence until the last few weeks previous to his death.

Moreover, England being essentially a maritime power, sailors hold a strong place in the regard and affections of their countrymen, who are ready to extend to seafaring men an indulgence withheld from every other profession. This, too, is no doubt accountable for much of the public favor accorded to Prince George. The latter will now however, be forced to give up all further active service in the navy and to settle down on dry land. His life has now become doubly precious to his family as well as to the nation.

Aside from the question of love and affection, there are grave considerations of a dynastic and a political nature which render it imperative that he should be prevented from incurring any risk, at any rate until he has married and provided one or more heirs to the crown. For were he to die unmarried, it would be his sister, the Duchess of Fife, who would assume his place in the line of succession to the crown, and the British people would be brought within a measurable distance of seeing a commoner, in the person of the Duchess of Fife's little daughter, Miss Alexandra Duff, styled Lady Alexandra merely by courtesy, seated on the throne of England.

Were this ever to occur, the very foundations of the monarchy would be shaken, for the prestige attached to royal blood and royal birth, which forms the chief basis of the monarchical system in England, would become a thing of the past.—Harper's Weekly.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is worthy your confidence. It is peculiar in that it strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. Give it a trial.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Dr. Frank H. Ingram gives the following warning in the New York World, anent the Memphis tragedy: Here is a strange story. It is not only a tragedy with a moral, but it brings to public notice social condition existing between young girls of an age really above girlhood and not quite approaching womanhood. There is in young women of a nervous organization a period in life which marks the transition between childhood and maturity. As a rule it comes between the fifteenth and seventeenth year of life. It is not the time when the child shows the first evidence of development, but it is that immediately succeeding. Miss Mitchell's murder of Miss Ward is exceptional in only a single particular—that is, the murder. Instances of similar compacts of love and marriage are familiar to physicians and to principles of schools for young women. Ordinarily these violent friendships do not exist for any great length of time; they are innocent and sincere. Occasionally, however, we find a case where the affection of school association is so great that a lasting effect is produced. It may result in a permanent mental derangement on account of estrangement, or it may demonstrate itself in any one of a variety of perversions. In all this there is a lesson for parents, a lesson for teachers and an opportunity for the public to reflect. Young girls should not be permitted to form attachments with their associates to such an extent that their thoughts and actions are centered in a channel of affection for a companion instead of being directed towards a healthy mental development. The case of Miss Mitchell is sad beyond expression. The tragedy which culminated a chidish affection, in itself pure, might have been prevented. To convict Miss Mitchell of murder would be a crime; and it may be remarked that we have no law which will encompass similar cases.

That the inhabitants of southern Europe clothe themselves very warmly in winter time, and do not light a fire unless the necessity for it is very great. Some of them say that fires are unhealthy, wherein they would agree with old-fash'oned persons in this country, who are wont to keep a large fire in living rooms, but say that it is healthful to go to bed without a fire. Other people, however, look upon a bed-room fire in a house with no furnace or steam heat as a necessity in winter, and an open grate fire is certainly an important means of vent'lation. More chills are taken than people imagine by leaving sitting rooms, which have had good fires in all day, and sleeping in cold bedrooms, never even warmed by a gaslight. No bedroom is so "stuffy" as the one in which the fire is seldom, if ever, lighted. It is a mistake to think it a matter of indifference when you are once asleep;" the temperature of the body is always less than when you are awake and moving about; this is the reason why people are so apt to take cold if they fall asleep while driving or sitting in the open air.

The durabil'ty of iron railway bridges, says the "Zeitschrift fur Transportwesen," is being investigated by several of the European governments as a consequence of the late serious bridge disasters. The result of extended English and German investigation seems to show that under the most favorable circumstances iron bridges are not safe for a period exceeding 75 years; and under certain conditions their life is much shorter.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Brought Against a Polish Catholic Priest.

Father Kolasinski Arrested, Charged with Criminal Assault—A Very Peculiar Case.

Something of a sensation was created yesterday afternoon by the arrest of Rev. Nicodemas Kolasinski, the Polish priest of St. Andrew's Catholic church at Air Line Junction, on the serious charge of having criminally assaulted a little girl.

The charge was preferred by the mother of Frances Jekovski, a 12-year-old girl, whom it is alleged the priest assaulted.

The reverend gentleman was arrested about 6 o'clock, but was immediately released on a $4,000 bail bond signed by his attorney, James E. Pilliod.

The case is a very peculiar one, and Father Kolasinski claims that it is simply an attempt to blackmail him, and failing in this, to ruin his character. He says that yesterday morning Frances Jekovski and her mother went to his house, and claiming that the girl was in an interesting condition, demanded money from him, stating that if he would pay them they would keep the matter quiet, otherwise they would have him arrested.

He refused their demands and they at once carried out their threat and swore out a warrant for him, alleging the assault to have been committed September 13, 1891, while the girl was employed as a servant in the priest's house.

The girl further claims that the priest was intimate with her on several other occasions while she worked there.

Father Kolansinski is very popular with his congregation, and when he was arrested a large number of his parishioners followed him to the station, and expressing their belief in his innocence, offered to furnish any amount of bail. They also were loud in their denunciations of the woman who had made the charge against their priest, and they claim that she is of a very loose character.

It is understood that the congregation will hold a meeting to-morrow at which they will pass resolutions expressing their confidence in Father Kolasinski.

In police court this morning the case was continued until next week.

P. S. Gilmore, general traveling passenger agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia road, better known in railroad circles as "Duly Authorized," is calling on Toledo friends to-day.

Wheeling & Lake Erie agents have been appointed as follows: F. W. Fisher, Trowbridge; A. W. Clark, Curtice; L. M. Metzger, Warrenton; H. E. Dutton, Rush Run; A. B. Gilmore, Martin's Ferry; M. S. Gillett, Wheeling, and A. P. Oxterby as freight agent at Wheeling.

"We're glad to get into Wheeling," said G. P. A. Hall, of the W. & L. E., this morning. Now we are the Wheeling & Lake Erie road without a doubt. We are now running a through train daily each way from Toledo to Wheeling, also trains from Steubenville to Wheeling. Business is lively and everything is lovely."

A LOCAL RAILROADER.

James McClean, of the Wheeling & Lake Erie.

One of the best known railroad men in the city is James McClean, who is at the head of the claim department of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road, a position he has filled for some years, ever since the company established its general offices here. Previous to his connection with the Wheeling he was the local agent of the Canada Southern railroad. Mr. McClean is barely past the fortieth milestone of life, and has a good many years before him in which to rise and shine in railroad circles. The above picture is a very fair likeness of this agreeable gentleman, and those who haven't had the pleasure of gazing on his countenance heretofore will have that pleasure in a measure now.

GOT OFF TOO EASY.

Wife-Beater Dwight Goes to the Works

For a Month and Heavily Fined—Sorrowful Tale From a Much-Abused Wife Told in Police Court.

Charles H. Dwight, living at 317 Troy street, was tried in police court this morning on a charge of abusing his wife. He pleaded guilty, but the judge had Mrs. Dwight make a statement. She was much affected, but between her sobs told how on numerous occasions he had choked and struck her and refused to furnish but little money for the support of herself and little child. Last night he assaulted her, choked her and pounded her head against the wall so hard that the plaster was knocked off, after which he pulled out a large handful of her hair and shut her in the clothes press for two hours.

The story of the abused wife was pitiful in the extreme and the scene was very affecting.

On this evidence Dwight was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse.

SALOON FIGHT

In Which James Brady is Stabbed

And Fred Chesley, Who Used th Knife, Gets Badly Pounded.

A lively row occurred in Graham's saloon at Air Line Junction about 10 o'clock last night, and in the melee James Brady, a railroad man living at Clyde, was cut in the right breast by Fred J. Chesley, an Air Line Junction painter. Chesley also received a beating. Both men were arrested, and when an effort was made to place Chesley in the patrol wagon he fought like a tiger, and it was necessary to use force and a pair of handcuffs to quiet him.

Brady's wound, though painful, is not a serious one, and he is able to walk about. Both men appeared in police court this morning, and Chesley, who is charged with stabbing with intent to wound, appeared much the worse used up. One eye is closed entirely, the other is nearly as bad, there were other bruises on his face, and his head was profusely bandaged.

The case was continued until Monday, and Brady is held under $100 bond as a witness.

A MOTHER'S COMPLAINT.

Her Daughter Taken Without Consent and Sent to the Reform School.

To the Editor: Has the humane agent the right to take away our children and cause their incarceration without cause or consent? This is a serious question.

Such a case was enacted by parties directly connected with Toledo's humane office. My daughter Irene, a girl of 13 years, was forcibly taken from my bedside without my consent and without any legal charge against her whatever. I made a demand for her to be returned to my home, and my child was dragged away without my knowledge or consent. The child was a good girl and did for me as much as it was possible to expect from a girl of her age. Readers of this article please, investigate my statements. Please don't be prejudiced because I am colored. Remember we, too, have hearts and feelings, and if we are recognizable let us be recognized; or, shall we be ignored and our children torn from our threshhold and our firesides? I again appeal to one and all good, liberty-loving people to investigate me and my conditions; and more particularly my complaint against the so-called humane society of Toledo, for they have torn from my bedside the only child I had (to wait on me during my sickness), all my future prospects, the only thing I cared to live for. Mothers, wherever you are that read this, or any one else, if you have one particle of doubt as to the truth of my statement, call at my room, 814 Summit street, on first floor, and I can convince you.

MRS. JENNIE CARTER.

Toledo, Feb. 6.

ASSISTANT PASTOR

Rev. Wm. Burns Transferred to St. Francis De Sales,

And Will Assist Rev. Dr. Quigley in That Parish, Taking Up the Work a Week From To-Morrow.

It is announced to-day that the Rev. William Burns, who succeeded the late Rev. Father Braire in the pastorate of St. Joseph's (French) Catholic church, has been appointed assistant to Rev. Dr. Quigley, of St. Francis de Sales parish.

The change will go into effect a week from to-morrow, when Father Burns will enter upon his new charge.

Dr. Quigley has long required and desired an assistant, and Father Burns is generally considered to be a very excellent selection.

Monseignor Boff, of the Cleveland diocese, has confirmed the appointment.

Father Burns will be succeeded at St. Joseph's by an eminent French divine, whose name has not yet been announced.

WATERWAYS.

The Senate Committee Listens to Much Argument.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Members of the delegation representing the Western Waterways association, who made arguments before the house committee on rivers and harbors yesterday, were to have appeared before the senate committee on commerce this morning, but through some misunderstanding several members of the delegation did not put in an appearance.

The secretary, Mr. John W. Bryant, was on hand and read a memorial and a number of resolutions that were adopted at deep water conventions, asking congress to make additional appropriations for the improvement of navigation and for legislation that will further interest the waterways of the United States.

He filed with the committee the argument made yesterday by Mr. Miller, before the house committee on rivers and harbors.

SOME ARGUMENTS FURNISHED

Against Admission of Women as Delegates to the General Conference.

Upon the above question there has been some of the liveliest debating of the year 1891, and the end is not yet. In a recent number of the Methodist Recorder Wilfred M. Kellogg, of Kendal Mills, N. Y., offers the following reason for not (?) granting women further honors in the church:

My soul is stirred by your plea for arguments against the admission of women as delegates to the general conference. Since it is only arguments you call for I freely give them, though worn threadbare; and can state as many of them as the Christian Advocate. My vote, however, will always be on the other side.

1. It is absolutely necessary in every well regulated and scriptural church to have a sufficient number of qualified persons to "serve tables," (Acts 6:1-4) and mop, scrub and paper churches. If the women are permitted to run off to annual conferences and general conference once in four years, who will look after this work? Who would provide oyster suppers and church festivals? "Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven (women) of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business."

2. They are too frail to "set on conference." (Samantha Allen.) Did not the men all run away from them, both going to the cross and to the tomb? Poor weak creatures, they could not run as fast as the men and so were left behind. Does not this prove that the men should be ahead? In the race of life we may expect to find them behind.

3. If we open our church to the women, giving (?) them all the privileges which belong to them on an equality with men, may we not expect to see our blessed church overrun with such women as Anna H. Shaw, Mrs. E. F. St. John, Frances Willard, Mrs. Mary Lathrop, Mother Stevart, Mother Wallace, Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Chapin, etc.? If they find a welcome among us will they not bring into our fold a mighty army of just as earnest souls? What could we do with such an army? Would it be right and expedient to let them thus find an easy exit from the churches where they now are and where they are kept in subjection? Would we not incur the displeasure of Dr. Buckley and other antis? Beware!

4. Did not Paul say, "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law?" If we take another step away from that rule will we not cease altogether to be conservative? Will not our sister churches withdraw their fellowship? Can we afford to be considered radically progressive at this point? Influence is worth something, you know.

5. But if we do all this will we not be heretics? True God said in the beginning "let them have dominion" but that was in the dark ages. True also that Paul thought that the perfect Christian church should know neither "Jew or Gentile, bond nor free, male or female;" but then we have got the women in tolerable subjecton now in Christendom, and we must be careful not to become either schismatic or heretical at this point.

6. But if we permit these women who are turning the world upside down to have ministerial and lay representation with ordination, "this our craft is in danger to be set at nought." And, "Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth."

Perhaps I have not dated all the objections which Dr. Buckley has advanced, and I believe I have given some new ones, especially the third, which the church will do well to consider. Will it be expedient to open the church, giving equal privileges to these women with their world wide influence, or bang the doors in their faces?

If you want more arguments I will send you another supply, but not one vote for that side.

TOLEDO, OHIO, FEBRUARY 6, 1892.

It is not at all certain that Hill wants to be president, but it is very certain that he will be in position to dictate the nomination in Chicago.

Congressman Springer has good indorsement for his plan of dealing with the tariff iniquity in the approval of Hon. David A. Wells of Connecticut.

It is not clear which Senator—Brice or Sherman—the blood-thirsty Foraker papers hate the more. Each receives a drubbing two or three times a week.

Congressman Mills does not help the cause of tariff reform by snarling and snapping at Crisp and Springer. A man with a grievance is usually handicapped.

The Bee repeats its suggestion with emphasis: A strong and shapely bit of leather, propelled by good leg force, should lift Mr. Thayer out of the Nebraska capitol, or a cow-boy might try his lasso on him.

Republican senators at Columbus announce that they will decide the judicial contest in favor of Snook, though the evidence clearly shows that Sutphen was elected. Such is the republican way of doing things—they grab for everything and take all they can. Partisanship rules the roost in Columbus.

The Boston Journal says "With a threatened deficit in the treasury, how can you cut down the tariff revenue?" Easiest problem in the world; deal justly with the people in the matter of taxation and scale down expenses to correspond. The republican taunt that the extravagance of the 51st congress made retrenchment by the 52nd impossible, is a little premature. Democratic congressmen know what the people expected of them when they sent them there.

That next to the pension business and the Indian business the census bureau needs overturning, is an uncontradictable fact. That the treasury is too empty to admit of necessary appropriations to conduct these, and that the country is humiliated by the high-handed dishonesty of an administration that places the country's finances in such disgraceful condition, is also a fact and not a theory. Power to continue such a course of legislation would soon reduce the country to the condition of prince and pauper. The prosperity of which we boast to-day is largely the prosperity of classes.

There is one point Mr. Mills should consider in his discomfiture: the republicans show greater apprehension for their pet law when the plan of attack by sections seems likely to be adopted. It is easier to take wool, salt, lumber and a few leading articles and show to the people the absurd claim that the tax is a benefit, than to demolish the whole structure. Knock out the props and it will come down. Mr. Blaine began the work, though he didn't dare a great deal. He pronounced it an utter failure and tried to tinker it up by means of giving the chief executive unwarranted and unconstitutional power.

One grows very tired of having pig iron and steel rails piled upon him, metaphorically, whenever the tariff is discussed. It was never argued by any opponent of the protective tax system that the beneficiaries of its favor would not become rich and mighty enough to dominate a slice of the country, or the whole of it in particular lines, or possibly the markets of the world. The iron industry under the wing of government bounty made millions out of the railroads and the railroads took it out of their patrons' pockets, and that's the chief factor in the western man's poverty to-day. To make one millionaire like Carnagie means the robbing of a good many plodding laborers.

Debate on Congressman Fithian's resolution, that agricultural implements be placed on the free list, will strike into tariff discrimination against the farmer. He should give it close attentoin and read the reports in papers which do not give news a partisan coloring. The American farmer pays more for home manufactured plows and mowers and reapers than does his neighbor in Canada. If he fails to see justice in such inequality, it behooves him now, while the fight is on, to inform himself as to the cause of it. He must discover for himself if the high-taxer is really legislating for his benefit.

THE BOOKS OF A YEAR.

Hamilton W. Mabie considers the literary production of the year just past, in the current number of the Forum. Not less than five thousand volumes is the annual average of books produced in this country, say nothing of the "yield" in England and on the continent. "Never before," he says, "has there been such scanning of the horizon for the dawn of new talent: and never before has any notable gift been in such peril of forced growth." There was once danger that a man's gift might be overlooked. There is now danger that it will be seen too early and too often. "There is less danger to the gifted in delay of recognition," says Mr. Mabie, "than in the haste with which fame has overtaken Mr. Kipling."

Contrary to often expressed opinion, it is found that the demand for sound and serious literary work is continually on the increase. There are more people to read good books every year, or there would not be more people to write them. Another observation is that "great books" come at times and from sources least expected. You may be looking to London or Oxford for the rara avis, and lo, it appears in Kilmarnock.

Good books are not necessarily "great books." The authors who answered the inquiry "Which is the best book of the year" in magazine papers last month confused this distinction, else the form of the question was wrong.

"The general expansion of literary ability" is the most notable fact to be recorded of the past year and years. Authors breathe a healthful atmosphere in this country, it is said, and their works are critical without any touch of pessimism. Names of authors and books too voluminous to quote here illustrate this expansion of ability. Inasmuch as Mr. John Fiske is soon to visit Toledo, a few lines concerning his "American Revolution" may be of interest. Says the critic "It cannot be easily overpraised so far as largeness of view, charm of narrative and effectiveness of arrangement are concerned. His narrative has none of the dryness of documents out of which history is constructed. To him more than any other historian, the reading people of the country owe a clear perception of the significance of the Revolution as an episode in the historic struggle between Liberalism and Toryism in England." Of the literary quality of the work: "Mr. Fiske cannot avoid being interesting and clear and luminous."

In every resume of the recent literary achievement, the Century Dictionary should receive honorable mention. Mr. Mabie's paper is an excellent refutation of the worry of some small critics about the decadence of literature and the weakness of American work especially. It is because of so much uniformly good work that there is little chance for exceptional distinguishment.

SOME IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.

The official report on immigration for 1891 shows the total number of immigrants to have been 590,666, an increase of 20 per cent. over the figures for 1890, which were 491,026. Ireland sent 55,000 and Germany 123,401. The emigrants from Poland seeking our shores were 31,285 last year, against 19,737 the previous year. The persecution of the Jews had something to do with this great increase, and that also accounts for the increase from Russia, which country in 1890 sent us 40,883 persons and in 1891, 73,177. The New Orleans affair did not deter Italian immigration, which increased from 62,492 in 1890 to 68,481 in 1891.

Every publicist understands how the new world problems are complicated by this yearly addition of an unassimilable element, and the time is certainly past when the failure of authority to regulate immigration as by law provided for can be lightly regarded. These laws have been enacted upon the demands, in very great measure, of labor organizations, but their observance is a matter in which every good citizen should be interested.

The Bee lately called attention to the almost absolute exclusion of English-speaking workmen in some of the mining districts of Pennsylvania, where Huns and other cheap, ignorant, and semi-civilized foreign workmen have been imported, in direct defiance of the contract labor law. This is one sample of many which could be cited to show how law is set at defiance by interested capitalists, and the lawlessness is winked at by suborned public officials.

The English criticise the American worship of gold. "T. U. H.," in Harper's Bazar, is willing to have this trait compared with their reverence for birth, blood and title. He reminds them that the death of "a singularly insignificant and uninteresting prince" overshadowed completely the death of a man of wonderful brain and a life of distinguishing works. Another contrast is in the sentiment excited. The title carries with it, worshipers in general; wealth has a very precarious hold and may become a reproach. In hereditary aristocracy, the worship is steadfast by inheritance and education. As W. D. Howells has well said, "American aristocracy (the unstable aristocracy of wealth) may look down; the rest of America doesn't look up." The first thing that strikes a new traveler in the old world monarchies, is the servile obligation to title and birth. The peasant stands with uncovered head and eyes cast down while the prince rides by. In America the money lord reins in his horses while the man with the dinner pail crosses the street ahead of him. While the aristocracy of wealth has too prominently a following in the Republic, it yet bears no comparison with the slavish aristocracy of birth that afflicts our English critics.

The expedition of relief to be sent after the Peary exploring ship, the "Kite," which sailed away in June last, does not signify that the party of discovery are in distress. It is to obviate this condition that a relief ship is sent ahead of its actual need. Undoubtedly this is the better, and perhaps it would be better still, if the Arctic explorers were to understand, in the start, that they took their lives in their own hands when they ventured on their fruitless and unnecessary voyages, which must involve great suffering if not final disaster.

The resignation of the whole board of trustees of the Grant Monument Association in New York is requested by a newspaper in that city. "Too much politics in it," is the reason given. If this journal will be patient a tablet to the memory of this board on account of its age will be in order.

Jupiter and Venus made a fine show last night. The superstitious who believe in astrology along with astronomy are predicting great events to follow. Maybe we will have another war with Chile or a scrap with San Salvador.

Tennyson's "17-line drivel" on the death of the Duke of Clarence isn't getting quoted very conspicuously. Perhaps the newspapers are taking the lord at his word—letting him alone in his seclusion.

"Princess Mary of Teck is a believer in palmistry." To be sure she is; the manner in which her hand is bestowed may mean queen or no queen.

The girls may be reminded that this is leap year and St. Valentine's day is the 14th of this month.

A watch should have been kept on little Ward Waterbury.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

A Card from "Another Candidate."

To the Editor: Quotation from the Blade: "Agent of the Standard Oil Co." Statutes of Ohio, "State Inspector of Oils." Section 395, says in substance, a skilled and suitable person shall be appointed, who is not interested in manufacturing, dealing or reducing any illuminating oils made from petroleum.

For the information of any who may be at the present time interested, or who may hereafter become so, or do not care at all about the matter, I will simply say that I am not the agent of the Standard Oil Co. Neither am I the agent of any concern that manufactures illuminating oils from petroleum, and that I am not a dealer in illuminating oils.

Yours respectfully,
HENRY TRACY.

Toledo, Feb. 6.

TO ENJOIN THE CITY.

Frank Cole Circulating a Petition with Some Success.

Frank Cole to-day and yesterday has been circulating a petition with a view of securing signatures and money from those opposed to the proposed issue of gas bonds. Each signer is asked to pay a sum in ratio to his taxes. The names of Mr. Barton Smith and Mr. Guy Kinney are mentioned in connection with the proposed suits.

It was supposed that Mayor Emmick would appoint an impartial committee on the gas investigating case, and yet one member of the committee at least has signed the petition.

NEW HALL

Frank Neiss and Ferdinand Mester, two prominent German citizens, are having plans prepared for a large three-story brick block to be built on the corner of Nebraska avenue and Division street. The building is to be built especially for the use of German societies, with business places on the ground floor. The third floor will be a large hall with a stage at one end, on which German plays can be presented.

LOST AT SEA.

London, Feb. 6.—A dispatch from Hughtown, capital of the island of St. Marys, one of the Scilly islands, off the southwest coast of England, says that an unknown Greek steamer has been wrecked off those islands.

Fifteen members of the crew have been landed in safety, but the captain of the wrecked vessel and nine of the crew are missing and it is supposed they have been drowned.

JAIL BURNED.

Doniphan, Mo., Feb. 6.—The county jail at this place was burned early yesterday morning. Loss $10,000. Two prisoners had a narrow escape. The fire is supposed to be the work of incendiaries, as one prisoner had been notified that in case he turned state's evidence the jail would be burned.

THE ACTIVE Y'S

Hold Their Regular Monthly Meeting,

And Start the Ball for a Large Reception—Other Matters That Were Considered

The regular meeting of the Ys was held yesterday afternoon in the First Congregational church parlors. The devotional exercises were conducted by Miss Louise King, after which the secretary's report and the report of the executive board were read and accepted.

The following new names for membership were read and accepted: Hattie Jack, Hattie Young, Kittie Young, Georgia Lacy, Mabel Brown, Mrs. Carrie Moses and Miss Carpenter.

The secretary read a letter from Miss Stuart, which was listened to with interest.

The topic for yesterday's meeting was the Flower Mission, and papers were read as follows: "Charity and Its Interpretation," Miss Blanche Lang; "Infirmary Work and Local Work," Miss Edna Roberts. The paper described the work being accomplished by this mission.

The next parlor meeting will be held with Miss Kate Keynon, Wednesday, February 24.

A reception is being planned for Mrs. Barnes, of New York, who is a well known temperance worker, for the 27th of February. It is thought that the use of Trinity parlors can be gained for this reception, and the following committees have been appointed: On place, Mrs. E. Eaton; arrangements, the Misses Anna Morse, Nettie Marker, Linda Ricards and Mrs. Judd Richardson; decorations, Mrs. Norman Haskell, Perla Bowman and Kate Gloyd; refreshments, Mrs. L. L. Barber, Misses Jessie Thurstin, Pearl Keen, Jessie Bond; invitations, Misses Ricards and Claflin. This promises to be a charming affair.

The mite boxes for the Temple fund have been received and were distributed. On the evening of Sunday, the 28th, there will be a public meeting of the Ys at the First Congregational church, to which all are invited.

The next regular meeting will be held the first Friday in March.

TOLEDO BANK STOCK.

Big Price Offered for a Block of the Merchants.

Holcomb's National Takes a Boom—For the Ketcham 136 Offered and No Sellers—A Deal on.

Toledo capitalists seem to have the utmost confidence in the future of the city, judging by the way they are investing money in Toledo banking stock. It speaks highly for the substantial credit of the city and the sound judgment of the holders of money.

A deal is on whereby a block of the Merchants National may change hands Yesterday 150 was offered for 50 shares and refused. Two years ago the stock sold for 116 and Mr. Newman and Mr. Wilcox said this morning that within two years they have bought it at 121. This shows a wonderful advance.

Yesterday a prominent local capitalist offered 136 for 50 shares of the Holcomb National, and the offer was promptly refused. Last June a block of the Holcomb stock was sold at 110.

A few days ago Mr. F. T. Lane was offered 136 for a block of the Ketcham National stock and he refused to accept it.

This condition of affairs must be gratifying to property owners and tax-payers alike. The standing of a city's banks is the truest standing by which to guage the prosperity of a city.

PAUPER EMIGRANTS

Investigated by Inspector Ryan with Good Results.

A Case in Point in Which He Stirred Up the Department at Washington.

Some time ago a story was printed in the Bee telling of a German emigrant named Keilhofer and his family, who dropped into Toledo as paupers, and applied for help at the infirmary office.

These paupers had landed in New York but a month before, and had been allowed to pass the barge office upon the representations of an unknown woman that she would take care of them.

The case was placed in the hands of Immigrant Commissioner Ryan, and he at once forwarded a statement of the matter to the treasury department at Washington.

An investigation was set on foot, but little came of it, as Mr. Ryan received a letter from the department stating that they considered the New York woman to blame, but placed no fault with the officials in New York, notwithstanding the fact that they did not take a bond as the law requires, to provide against the emigrants becoming a public charge inside of five years.

Inspector Ryan's work, however, in this and other cases has been instrumental in preventing paupers being dumped into the city by the railroad companies and others, as formerly occurred very frequently.

THOSE TWO BIG STARS

That Toledoans Saw Hanging in the West

Last Evening Were Jupiter and Venus in Close Conjunction—A Word About the Phenomenon.

Toledoans who chanced to glance at the western heavens early last evening noticed what appeared to be two very brilliant stars, hanging close together and blinking away like two enormous electric lights. They were not stars, however, but two great planets, Jupiter and Venus, that, coming in close conjunction, caused the most brilliant spectacle that lovers of astronomy have seen for years or will have occasion to witness again for at least 100 years to come. The two big planets came so near together that they shone as one great star at 5 o'clock this morning. They were then below the horizon of Toledo, but their approach to each other was plainly visible in the clear sky until about 8 o'clock last evening, when they set in each other's embrace.

While the planets appeared to be close together they were, of course, in reality, millions of miles apart, but in the same straight line from the earth, which caused them to be near together as far as we earthites were concerned. They can be seen quite near each other in the west this evening, but the distance between is rapidly widening.

Owners of large telescopes enjoyed the spectacle. A Bee had the pleasure of taking a peep through B. A. Stevens' six-footer. It was a beautiful sight. Jupiter appeared as a big bright disk with its four moons swinging about it, while Venus loomed up like a half moon, for we can see only one-half of her illuminated surface from the earth.

They were but one-sixtieth of a degree or one minute apart. Prof. Stockwell, the Cleveland astronomer, was asked how the conjunction of Jupiter and Venus this morning compared in brilliancy with that of Jupiter and Saturn, which occurred about the time of Christ's birth, and which disbelievers in the miraculous claimed was the star of Bethlehem. He said it was ridiculous to think of Jupiter and Saturn being regarded as one star at that time, for when they were the nearest together they were 62 minutes apart, or more than a degree, and almost twice the width of the sun as it would appear to a beholder from the earth. He said that at the conjunction of Venus and Saturn on June 17, seven years before Christ, they were 64 minutes apart. September 18, of the same year, they were 62 minutes apart, and on December 15 there was another conjunction of the same planets when they were 68 minutes apart. In each of these cases they could not have appeared only as two stars, for planets must be within only a minute or two of each other, angular measurement, to give the brilliant appearance of one star

LOCAL COAL ROADS.

What They Handled During January.

The Report of the Ohio Coal Traffic Association Tells the Story—A Good Month.

The amount of coal handled daily by several Toledo coal roads at present averages as follows, according to the reports of the Ohio Coal Traffic association: The Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad, 330 car loads; the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, 172; the Toledo & Ohio Central, 138.

The amount of coal handled by the above roads from January 1 to 28 was as follows: C., H. V. & T., 9,268 car loads; T. & O. C., 3,894 carloads; W. & L. E., 4,783 carloads. The B. & O. handled 1,355 carloads during the same period.

THE BATTLE IS ON.

Bricklayers Demand $4.50 for Nine Hours' Work.

The Opening of Spring Trade Attendant with Grave Dangers—Peculiar Condition of Affairs in Local Labor Circles.

The labor troubles growing out of anticipated demands for increased pay or reduced hours with the opening of spring work have come, and there is danger ahead.

The Bricklayers' union has started the ball rolling by demanding $4.50 a day for nine hours' work. This is an increase of 45 cents over the price paid last season.

It is generally believed that the contractors who have not yet replied to the demand will resist it and refuse to give over 45 cents an hour.

The outcome will be watched with the greatest interest for various reasons in local labor circles. The bricklayers are not affiliated with the Building Trades council, and will therefore be obligel to fight the battle alone.

There are about eighty members of the Bricklayers' union, and in the city about thirty-five non-union bricklayers. The introduction of the working card, whereby all members of unions under the jurisdiction of the Building Trades council are prohibited from working with non-union men, will tend to complicate matters.

For instance, a union carpenter will not work on the same building with a non-union bricklayer, plumber, tinner, plasterer, etc., and vice versa. As a result, the building began with non-union men must employ non-union men from roof to cellar.

"This seems to be a big contract. Can you carry it out?" a member of the B. T. C. was asked last night.

"Certainly we can. It is just this way. A contractor can perhaps get enough non-union bricklayers, carpenters or painters to put up a building, but he cannot get non-union plumbers, plasterers or tinners—at least not in Toledo. Now, under our rules, every trades union must work in harmony with every other trades union. We will put a steward on every building and every workman must have his card to show that he is in the council."

"Will you recognize the bricklayers' union in the event of a strike?"

"No. The union is not federated with the council. We will work with them, however, on buildings, and will recognize their cards as good, but will hold aloof in case of trouble."

"What is the meaning of the organization of the Builders' Exchange?"

"It is a good thing for us and a mighty good thing for the members. The average contractor is willing to live and let live, but there are a lot of small sharks who not only hurt their own trade generally but hurt us. I am glad to see the Builders' Exchange organized. It will, I understand, also include the material men—sand, lime, hardware—and this will also be a good thing, as these suppliers of materials have been victimized eternally."

ELECTRIC RAILROAD.

St. Louis, Feb. 6.—The engineer corps of the projected Chicago & St. Louis electric railway began a survey today. The route of the new road will be almost an air line, and the survey will be completed within 50 days. Those back of the project claim that the trip from St. Louis to Chicago will be made within three hours under the new system.

For it alone gives to the mouth
White teeth and fragrance of the south.

O. Y. C. AFFAIRS.

New Board of Directors Held Its Initial Meeting.

The Indebtedness Adjusted—The Club's Membership Will be Increased and Then Limited.

The difficulties which a short time ago threatened to rend the O. Y. C. asunder, have been most peaceably adjusted, and everything is as lovely as a bright day in June.

The new organization is in power, and the officials have taken hold with a vim that augurs future success and prosperity for the club.

The newly-elected board of directors held the first meeting last night. The pending indebtedness was taken up and disposed of satisfactorily to all concerned.

A house committee consisting of the following members was elected: James A. Faskins, chairman; G. G. Keip, secretary; Henry T. Marshall, Frank Hartman, W. T. Wilson.

W. H. McLyman was elected collector.

An effort will be made to increase the membership of the club. Each member at the next meeting will be requested to bring in a new member. At the next annual meeting the membership will be limited to a certain number, and when that has been attained no more new members will be taken in.

JERRY COAKLEY

Gets a Lecture and Five Years in the Pen

For the Killing of Harvey McDonald—Other Sentences Passed by Judge Lemmon.

Judge Lemmon's room of the common pleas court, was crowded this morning by spectators curious to learn the fate of Jerry Coakley, as it was given out that the prisoners convicted during the recent term of court would be sentenced.

Claud Gregory was the first prisoner to stand up. He is a mere boy, but with a countenance bespeaking evil in every expression. He maintained a bold, brazen front while the court was passing sentence. With a partner named Fable, Gregory committed an assault on another boy named Wm. Misch, November 23, 1891. The assault was wholly unprovoked, and during the fracas Gregory cut Misch in a terrible manner with a razor. Fable escaped, and has since been arrested and sent up from Dayton for burglary. Gregory was sentenced to three years.

Charles Smith was next sentenced to seven years at hard labor for burglary and larceny. Smith burglarized the residence of R. V. Boice on Monroe street, and Edwin Jacoby on Jefferson street. He first plead not guilty, and claimed that he was in Detroit on the night the burglary occurred in Toledo. An attorney was appointed to defend the case, and the county defrayed expenses of a trip to Detroit to substantiate Smith's statement with regard to an alibi, but not the slightest trace of Smith's identity could be found. He then changed his plea to that of guilty.

A funeral-like silence prevailed when Jerry Coakley was requested to stand up and receive sentence. In passing sentence Judge Lemmon administered some wholesome advice, which, if appreciated at its worth, the young man will brace up and outlive his present disgrace.

The court, after reviewing the case from beginning to end, stated that the prisoner's past good record, excepting a short time back, his age, his manly appearance, all appealed to the leniency of the court. He was a young man with ability, and would, no doubt, make a good citizen. Evil companions and idleness had worked his ruin. A light sentence would meet the intention of the law and perhaps save instead of make a criminal. The sentence passed was five years at hard labor in the Ohio penitentiary.

Charles Johnson, was next sentenced to three years for forgery. He signed Geo. H. Ketcham's name to a check for $25, realized the cash on it, and skipped to Detroit.

A motion for a new trial in the Haskell forgery case was filed to-day, which will be heard next Monday. Sentence was not passed in this case.

WARREN SMITH,

Delta's Missing Groceryman, Has Returned

To His Home—He Is Unable to Give a Satisfactory Account of Himself.

A few days ago a deputy sheriff of Fulton county was in Toledo in search of Warren Smith, a prominent groceryman of Delta, who had wandered from home while mentally deranged from the grip, particulars of which appeared in the Bee at the time.

A letter received in Toledo to-day stated that Mr. Smith had returned voluntarily and was bedfast with a raging fever.

On arriving in Delta he went direct to his store, and after shaking hands with a few acquaintances, went upstairs, where he lived. He was pale and haggard, but evidently sane. When he stepped into the room his wife began to cry, and he appeared to be greatly surprised at her action. His sister asked him where he had been, and he answered that he had been in the city to see the sights. He told the doctor that he had been trying for a long time to get back home, but couldn't do it. He could give no satisfactory account of his wanderings, but his people are of the opinion that he went from Toledo to Ft. Wayne.

EXPRESS MESSENGERS

Being Discharged by the Adams Company.

None of the Toledo Men Affected as Yet—Fighting a Brotherhood.

The Adams Express company has put all of its messengers on the anxious seat by a number of discharges in various parts of the country. Messengers who have been with the company for a long time have been discharged at Cincinnati, Cleveland and other points, without any notice and the messengers claim that no reason has been given.

It is understood, however, that the men were let go because they belonged to a brotherhood to which the company was opposed.

The agent here states that none of the messengers running into Toledo have been discharged. He says that all such orders come from headquarters and nothing is known of the matter here. He does not anticipate any trouble.

BOOTH'S FIRST PLAY.

Richard III. in Stolen Armor in a Baltimore Cellar.

A small, but daintily furnished parlor, in a flat, theatrical mementoes of rare value, "old timers" here and there—the unmistakable blending of the "professional" instinct even in home life—with the signs of happy domesticity found, so far as my experience goes, says a writer in the Pittsburg Leader, more frequently in the households of Thespians than the wandering, cynical public imagine possible, and for the central object George L. Stout, who made his debut as a boy with Edwin Booth, John S. Clarke and others at more or less renown, now stage manager at the Alvin theater. Stout leaned back in his easy chair and talked delightfully.

"Oh, it seems very long ago," he said, "but I think we'll all remember it till we die. You see, in Baltimore we boys—Edwin Booth, Stuart Robson, Theodore Hamilton, John S. Clarke and myself—were bent on theatricals. We were 'crushed tragedians,' but our fire would not be quenched; so, after a council in which we included William Talbot and Summerfield Barry, we hired a cellar under a gambling house kept by Lutz, poor Laura Keene's husband. Our lessee was the negro janitor who had charge of the building, and he agreed to keep our doings from the people overhead if we allowed him to be doorkeeper and take half the proceeds. As our only burning ambition was to have an opportunity of distinguishing ourselves among our fellow boys, we gladly acceded to his terms, and in a short time the cellar was arranged in this manner: Boards were put up at one end, within which sufficient dirt was dumped to create a stage. The auditorium was composed of board benches only now to be found in the few remaining 'barnstormers' in England, and our rates of admission were as follows: Front seats, 3 cents; back seats, 2 cents; gallery (a peculiarly constructed arrangement), 1 cent. Our scenery was unique. It consisted of a flat made of a sheet, on which, in soft red brick, was painted a house. For a curtain, we had a gayly patched bed quilt, purloined from some attic stores, which was drawn on strings.

"In this theater Edwin Booth may be said to have made his first appearance.

"Our initial performance was Richard III., owing to a predilection of Edwin Booth in its favor, but he decided to produce only the first act. We hunted about and got anything that was bright and gaudy for our costumes, but Booth as Richard naturally required armor. Here was a dilemma. Our resources and our bank accounts, needless to say, were meager. But a happy thought occurred to Edwin. His father had not at that period played Shylock for some time, and in the attic at home was an old Shylock costume. Thither sped the young Richard, found the costume and we got out what, in the professional vocabulary, we call 'concaves'—large spangles used for armor. These he fastened on to a piece of oil-cloth and tied it on over his shoulders for armor.

"Our rehearsals proceeded quite to our satisfaction, but we little reckoned that meanwhile a special request had been made for the elder Booth to give a performance of his Shylock. Such, however, was the case. Mr. Booth, as a first thought, hunted up his old dress—remember these were not the days of the ready and realistic costumer's art—and it was missing. Quite innocently little Joe Booth, who had witnessed the purloining, said: "Edward had it down in the cellar theater.' Meanwhile, we were in full blast—our 'house' good, and Edward was declaiming grandly in his oil-skin and spangle armor, fine to behold—'A horse! A horse!' etc. Scene at the door by our landlord—the elder Booth looming with rage. Not knowing him, the darky demanded piteously his 3 cents admission, but the never-to-be-forgotten, magnetic tones reached the younger Booth. It was the voice of his parent, as he well knew, and forgetful of histrionic triumph, he turned and fled precipitately for the first means of exit in view—a cut window in the back scene, whence he hoped to escape down the alley. The opening, however, proved too small. 'Richard' was held midway, and his father, in a towering passion, reached the stage and belabored him unmercifully! Meanwhile his cries reached a policeman in the street, who rushed in, and a general 'racket' ensued."

THAT TELEPHONE TO MARS.

When Edison begins to build
His telephone to Mars,
Will he have to dig the post holes
On the intervening stars?

Or will he fire his wire
Up into the air—far up
From one of those big guns
That are made by Mr. Krupp?

When they are thus united
They will make a handsome pair,
For Mars is a brave soldier
And the Earth is very fair.

When they take their wedding journey
With the wire stretched pretty tight,
Will the honeymoon be over
If it strikes our satellite?

Still, I'm very much afraid
That Mars will not agree
To dangle at Earth's apron-string
However fair she be.

Ah, no! Our learned inventor,
Has a better plan than these,
For he's long been acquainted
With the heavenly mysteries;

When a passing thunder-cloud
With his message is impressed,
Thomas A. will "press the button;"
His friend Jove will "do the rest."

Professors Waldron and McArdle of the North Dakota Agricultural college, are collecting grasses for a state exhibit at the world's fair. Among the specimens secured along the shores of Devil's Lake was a species of slough grass which had attained the unprecedented length of 25 feet. They also found what seemed to be a new variety of wheat growing wild on the prairies this season, very much higher than the cultivated kind.

A man from Biddeford, Me., who started as a candy peddler with a small circus, has turned out to be a better showman than the proprietor of the circus. The circus became stranded in Altoona, Pa., and the candy peddler took the fat woman, the stuffed snake and the trained bear as his share of the wreck. He exibited the curiosities in a vacant store, cleared $300 the first week, enlarged his show, hired a small hall, and now owns a flourishing dime museum.

The audacity of Senator Edmunds in lecturing the supreme court on a point of law recalls an anecdote of Henry Clay, who once, while arguing a case before that august tribunal, stopped in the middle of his speech, advanced to the bench and helped himself to a pinch of snuff out of Mr. Justice Washington's box. Then as he returned to his place he remarked, "I see that Your Honor still sticks to the Scotch." Clay was the only man of his time who could dare to do such a thing, as Edmunds is of his own day.

One who knew him well writes that the late Prince Lucien Bonaparte bore a more striking resemblance to the great Napoleon than any other of the emperor's relatives, but he was much taller. He was a favorite of Queen Victoria, with whom he dined regularly twice a year during his long residence in England, and he usually sent her majesty the first copy of all of his erudite treatises, and in return received a handsomely bound copy of the queen's "Life in the Highlands," ornamented with the autograph inscription, "From his friend the authoress."

The clerk generously fed the smart dog, but now he wishes that he hadn't, for every day since the collie has appeared to beg for more doughnuts. If the shop door is closed he will wait outside until someone opens it, and then dodge in to get his regular free lunch.

Explorer Buttikoffer says that a clock is rarely seen in the farm houses of Liberia, and many of the town people have no time pieces. He adds that there are few civilized countries where a time piece can be dispensed with so conveniently. The sun rises at 6 a. m. and sets at 6 p. m. almost to the minute throughout the year, and at noon it is directly overhead. Many people become so expert in telling time by the sun that they are rarely more than a quarter of an hour in error. In place of alarm clocks they depend upon the crowing cock to arouse them in the morning.

Francisco Cadero, of Ventura, Cal., had a very narrow escape from a horrible death the other afternoon. He was cleaning out a well on Olive avenue, and while at the bottom it caved in on him and buried him to the neck. Help was soon at hand, but for fear of caving in more of the well and burying him completely from sight, extreme care had to be taken. The top of the well, some eight feet above the head of the entombed man, showed that it would fall in at the slightest weight, and the men with shovels dug the earth away several feet all around and finally, after four long hours, he was taken out and found to have received but little injury.

Senator Stanford believes that magnetism can be developed in men and horses by intelligent effort, and in breeding thoroughbreds on his California stock farm he has made experiments to that end. The triumphs of Sunol and Palo Alto prove his theories to be correct, he thinks. To a friend he is reported to have said: "In short, my secret is this: I cultivate the horse's magnetism and intelligence, I let him know I want his utmost, but I let him understand I will not press him too far; then he trusts me and does his best. They know me as children would, and manifest attachment for me. I have found that if you press a horse too far for an instant you may be weeks getting back where you were. From the colt days they know I am studying to help them, not to hurt them."

TALK ON THE WEATHER.

Cold Weather Yet in Store for the People.

Prof. Foster Sees a Frigid Wave Coming.

The Subject of Drouths Discussed—What Causes Them—An Aerial River Streaming Over Our Heads.

Copyrighted 1892 by W. T. Foster.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 6.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from February 6th to 10th, and the next will be due to reach the Pacific coast about the 11th, cross the western mountains by the close of the 12th, the great central valleys from 13th to 15th, and the eastern states about the 16th.

This storm will be above an average in force till about the 15th or 16th, at which time it will be in the states of Pennsylvania and New York, and its force will then greatly increase and it will contiue to be a severe winter storm through the eastern states and southeastern Canada on the 16th and 17th.

About the 15th and 16th the cold wave, then in the Missouri and Mississippi valleys, will increase in force and intensity, causing gales and severe cold for that season of the year. The cold wave will probably reach far into the southern states.

Drouths; Their Causes and Remedies.

Prior to 1870 rainfall was very light in Texas, west and southwest of the Colorado river, and in the Panhandle country of that state. Since 1870 the average rainfall there has largely increased. According to the theory promulgated by the State University of Kansas, it is cultivation that has increased the rainfall. Just as well claim that cultivation in the great Asiatic desert of Gobi will restore it to rainfall and fertility; when it is an indisputable fact that the ancient Aryan tribes cultivated those rich lands to their death, bringing a perpetual drouth to a country as large and fertile as now are the great central valleys of the United States. The Gobi desert is the heritage of long continued cultivation and the destruction of the forests, and no professor in the Kansas university will risk his reputation denying it.

To every old settler in Texas it is a well known fact that, because the prairie fires have been kept out of western Texas since 1865, the number and growth of trees have largely increased, and especially is this the case with the brush or small timber lands.

An aerial river of water is almost constantly streaming northwestward over the state of Texas. That river rises from the Gulf of Mexico through the influence of the perpetual high barometer that covers the Atlantic north of 20 degrees north latitude. By this I mean to say that the principal part of the moisture that waters all of the great northern lakes, comes from the Gulf of Mexico and moves northwestward in transparent streams of moisture laden atmosphere.

This great aerial river flows onward over Oklahoma, western Kansas and Nebraska, eastern New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming in the direction of the Dakotas and Montana.

But why does it precipitate many times more water in eastern than in western Texas? Because the trees protect the earth from the sun's rays and prevent it from being excessively heated.

Wherever the earth becomes excessively heated by the sun's rays, there the rainfall will be light. That great belt of country, three hundred miles wide and a thousand miles in length, lying east of the Rocky mountains, is a hotbed, especially in the summer months, and the hot air constantly rising from that great arid district drives the aerial river high into the atmosphere, where it encounters the returning current and is carried back to the Gulf of Mexico without having accomplished the work of watering the great western plains.

This condition of the weather, covering about 300,000 square miles of arid country affects the climate of all that vast country lying between the Rockies and the Alleghanies, and including West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York.

The moisture brought northward from the gulf is precipitated, in rain or snow, over all the vast country described above by the periodical low barometers that cross the continent from west to east.

That moisture must come from the Gulf of Mexico by way of the aerial river I have described, and as fully one-half of the water carried by this river is turned back and deposited in the gulf by the influence of the hot winds of the arid plains, it becomes a matter of great importance that these rising currents of air be prevented.

How can they be prevented? The Kansas university, through its professors, says that cultivation will accomplish it, when it is very plain to any observant mind that cultivation will aggravate the disease and make the hot winds still hotter.

To remedy this evil, trees must be grown in vast numbers, and that result cannot be obtained in many places without irrigation. The drouth years will return because they are governed by planetary influences, and these drouth years will kill the trees where they are planted on the uplands and not watered by irrigation.

The people who live within the drainage of the Upper Mississippi and the great lakes, have their whole attention turned toward the pineries of the north, believing that their only escape from perpetual drouth lies in saving their northern pineries from destruction. The destruction of these pineries will certainly very greatly increase the drouth, but it should not be forgotten that serious drouths occurred in the upper Mississippi valley states while the northern pineries were in their most flourishing condition. There were no conditions in the north that could have been the cause of these drouths, and the only cause that can reasonably be ascribed is that the moisture that must necessarily come from the Gulf of Mexico was cut off by the hot winds of the western plains.

It is not reasonable to suppose that these plains have long been sterile and rainless. On the other hand, there are many evidences going to prove that heavy timber once covered that whole country, that it was inhabited by a civilized race and was cultivated. I have no doubt that civilization and destruction of the timber brought on the present state of aridity, and that the surest and quickest way to bring it back to its ancient fertility is to supply it with trees and encourage the growth of grasses suitable for arid countries.

Wherever there is a grove of trees, there will be found an atmosphere cooler than that overlying the bare ground, and this cool atmosphere will cause a downpour from above, thus mixing the cool and the hot air, bringing the gulf current nearer the earth, and insuring its continued course toward the northwest.

The recent experiments in making rain by combustion, proves that the upper currents of air in those arid districts are heavily laden with moisture, and it is not difficult to understand that cooling the earth by irrigation and trees will bring those moist currents down to the earth.

It will not be denied that near the earth these currents move northwestward, while at a greater altitude, they move in the opposite direction. In the high barometer over the gulf, the atmosphere comes down to the water, and after absorbing moisture, begins its movement to the north or northwest, toward the low barometer, then crossing the northern Rocky mountains. Entering the low barometer, the air rises till it loses its moisture by precipitation, and then returns again by way of the upper atmosphere to the high barometer over the gulf, and again coming down to gather up the moisture from the ocean, begins anew its journey to the northwest.

Cool these parching plains by irrigation, tree-planting and by preventing prairie fires, and not only will the arid districts be reclaimed to fertility, but the dreadful drouths will be prevented from periodically destroying millions of dollars' worth of cereals in these great central valleys.

HE ROBBED THE BANK.

Reward Offered for a Former Trusted Employe.

Hamburg, Ia., Feb. 6.—About a month ago Albert Borchers was employed as bookkeeper for the bank of Hamburg, of this place. He was intrusted with the combination to the vault door.

Wednesday evening the cashier was called from the bank and during his absence Borchers put the time lock in such a condition that when the cashier returned and closed the safe the lock failed to work.

During the night Borchers returned, unlocked the vault and opened the safe, taking $7,100, after which he put the time lock in proper condition, re-locked the safe, setting it for 10 o'clock the next day, locked the vault and took the 3:30 train for Council Bluffs. A reward of $3,000 is offered for Borchers' apprehension.

FULL OF HOLES,

But Happy and Something of a Philosopher.

He Drops In at the Free Employment Bureau and Jumps at the Chance of Getting a Wife.

He walked into the free employment bureau with the air of a man who wanted something, but didn't know just what that something was, and sidling up to the desk of Superintendent Murphy, blurted out:

"Say, you, be this the place where y'u gets things fer people?"

"We get some things for people. What may your wants be?"

"Well, you see, my name's George Scott. I'm living down on Water street, near the Pennsylvania depot, and I'm boarding, you know, and that costs, and I kinder wanted a job on a farm you know."

"There's no opening on a farm just at present for a single man," answered Mr. Murphy, "but if you had a wife—"

"Wal, couldn't you kinder get me one," interrupted the caller, "to go along with the job?"

"Well, now, I don't know; perhaps I could," returned Mr. Murphy, with a twinkle in his eye. "What kind of a woman would you prefer, Irish, Dutch, Italian—"

"Oh, I don't know; guess I'd like a mixed one—yes, a mixed one would do."

"How would you like a Polish girl?" suggested a bystander.

"No, no, mixed; what'll it cost?"

"It won't cost anything, that is, only for a license."

"How much'll that be?"

"Seventy-five cents."

"Seventer-five cents! Well, I guess I'll have to let the job go, I ain't got the money. That's the trouble with gettin' married, it costs so much. Good day, I'll worry along alone."

"See here," said Mr. Murphy, "as you're a pretty likely sort of a chap, I'll pay for the license."

"Will y'u? It'd be a great load off'n my mind. I'd be better off doubled up and sorta anchored like. You see a single man be ain't much—kinda loose like—holes—why I'm holes from the top of my hat to the soles of my feet. Darn 'em? Why, I can't; there ain't no darn to the darn things. Sometimes I pull them together, but that makes a bunch, and I'd rather feel the hole. A hole ain't so bad, after all. I tried cutting the holes out, but somehow or other that didn't work. It's just as a man thinks, anyhow. If holes was the fashion he'd wear holes; if they wuzn't, why he wouldn't, that's all there is to it. Folks just does what other folks is doing.

"Folks nowadays likes money. I don't. Money's a bother. Why, some people work and grind and grind and work all their lives and save and save and don't spend at all and when they're old they're got a pile of money. Then they die. It didn't do 'em any good. They might just as well saved up a pile of mud. Then they leaves it to somebody as goes and gets drunk and blows it all in, and that's the end. I ain't laying up for any of yer future generations to galivant on. If there's any galivanting going on I'm going to do it myself. I'm feeling better now. My holes kin keep on growing till I'm a patent walking vetilated sort of an arrangement, and then I'll come around and take that wife and get darned up. Good-bye. You tell her to come here and write the man that we'll take the job and I'll come around to-morrow."

Then the holey philosopher ambled out into the street with such a smile of sublime happiness and contentment on his face that everybody he met never saw the holes at all and said to themselves as he passed, "There goes a man that's well fixed, plenty of money and happy family growing up around him."

Charley Murphy has his 75 cents in his pocket, and if the matter comes to an issue he'll be on hand to put up for the license.

John Schulz, Plaintiff,
vs.
George Foerch and others, Defendants.

In court of common pleas of Lucas county, Ohio.

George Foerch, whose place of residence is unknown, and Rosina Shulz, residing in the town of Grab, District Backnaug, in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg in Germany, and Frederick George Schulz, who resides in the town of Wohlhauem, Canton Luzern, in Switzerland, will take notice that on the 29th day of January, 1892, John Schulz filed his petition in the court of common pleas in and for Lucas county, Ohio, against them and Lizzie Beese, Chas. Beese and Henry Spielbusch, as executor, averring and charging therein that Catharine Foerch died at Toledo, Ohio, on January 11th, 1892, and that on the 16th day of January, 1892, a certain paper, dated August 5th, 1889, pretending to be the last will of said Catharine Foerch, deceased, was admitted to probate in the probate court of Lucas county, as her last will; that Henry Spielbusch was qualified as executor of said pretended will, but that said paper writing was not the last will of said deceased, and plaintiff prays that an issue be made up as to whether said paper is the last will of Catharine Foerch, deceased; that the same be set aside and for other relief. Said parties are required to answer on or before the third Saturday after 5th of March, A. D., 1892.

A. B. Chase Co., Piano Manufacturers,
Norwalk, Ohio:

Dear Sirs—I gave last night a concert in the presence of 1,500 people (my 83d on the present tour, after 10 years' absence) and was especially pleased not only by the elegance, finish, magnificent workmanship, but above all by the superb tone and action of your Grand Upright.

I was delighted hearing my accompaniments to my beloved violin on such a fine piano. After my third or fourth piece I inquired after the maker's name, and to be sure it was an A. B. Chase. It does you great honor, and I am highly pleased to write to you these few lines of my artistic appreciation. I wish I had every night such an instrument at my disposal; and by the by, this reminds me, I will send you my route, and if you can do something for me, my violin and I, we both would be your, very obliged and devoted, fiddle and I.

A ROSE FOR HIM.

She pinned some creamy, fluffy thing
About her throat, and added there
A half-blown rose; and lingering
Awhile to make herself more fair,
I queried of her, half in jest,
The name of her expected guest.

"We dine alone to-night," said she.
"I linger at my toilet
Not for the eyes of company,
But for a dearer object yet—
Now for a husband's eyes attired,
The self of old my love admired.

"It would have grieved my heart of yore
Not to be comely in his eyes;
And now how infinitely more
Of moment to retain the prize!
And so I have a rosebud there
To brighten in my silvering hair.

" 'Twere not enough to win him mine
Nor yet enough so to be won,
But the sweet right of love divine
To keep the Eden so begun,
And when another decade dies
To still be lovesome in his eyes."

A holy lesson, sweet to con,
And sweet in daily life applied;
Youth's blithest idyl still lisped on,
The matron gentle as the bride.
The winning long ago was done,
But every day she keeps him won.

Look After the Boys.

Here is something for parents to think about—ex-Warden Brush, of Sing Sing prison, when asked, "What is the particular cause that sends most of our men to prison?" invariably replies:

"The want of family discipline. The indulgence of the father and mother, who allow the child to grow up without any discipline to form character, leads almost inevitably to evil ways and consequently to prison."

Prison statistics, late sent out by the census bureau, show an alarming increase in the number of young men criminals. An observing person, walking the streets of any city at night will find basis for the opinion of the ex-warden. He will see squads of young men, little more than lads in years, going into the most questionable places with the air of perfect nonchalance and familiarity. Saloons, gambling dens and worse place are frequent rendezvous. Are fathers and mothers too busy, too much interested in other affairs to know where their sons are? When an arrest for crime shocks the community, then they get in one bitter lump the penalty for their indifference. Then they begin to look about them. The crop of "wild oats" of which they jocosely speak, brings a harvest of disgrace and misery. If the daughters of the family are kept on a plane of fine respectability, no one worries much about the sons. Every sin and dissipation is forgiven them by society—if they do not get found out and arrest and disgrace follow. It is this freedom from restraint granted young America that precipitates such mournful disasters as has over taken Cyrus W. Field and his family. Even a faithful mother's watchfulness is not enough. She may be an angel in character and a restraining influence during the years of her control, but the boy, full of spirit and ambition to be a man, takes his father and big brothers and other men who occupy prominent places, for his example. The poky home ideas will do for mother and the girls; they are not out in the world—they don't know; a fellow has to keep with the crowd or get left. Clubs, cigarettes, midnight pow-wows and won't-go-home-till-morning sprees are the milestones, in his mind, on the shortest route to manhood.

The young men and young women of to-day are drifting far apart. The study classes, history circles and charity societies are made up of girls and women. These girls, well and carefully brought up, meet, in a social way, these young men of families as respectable as their own. But if the wives prospective could know the truth concerning the lives of their associates who present themselves for smiles and companionship when they are in the mood—I was going to say they woul spurn them with the bitterest words of scorn a woman could utter. But I would be wrong. On the contrary we see these carefully reared young women, knowing and believing the dark rumors, take these fast young men for husbands and expect to live happily with them. They may become—but they live wretched and unsuccessful lives. And the divorce court shows there are very few instances of the sublime patience that endures to the end. Is ex-Warden Brush correct? Is the lax discipline of children the cause of increase of crime among the young? And to what extent, in the line indicated, are women responsible?

"One to the world for the world's work's sake."

The first monopoly to be controlled by women is the bread-making machine. With this machine, it is claimed that seven men (or women) can turn out seventy loaves of bread a minute. The cost of transforming a barrel of flour into bread in the old way is $2.50 which, it is said, is reduced to 50 cents by the machine. No man is allowed to purchase stock in the concern and employment will be given to women so far as is practicable. The parent bakery will be established in Chicago. Well-known and competent women are at the head of the enterprise. A bread machine, invented by a woman and run by women will take the heart out of a good many essays about women and bread and wifely duty and accomplishments.

A society paper tells how Lady Londonderry "the famous English beauty" succeeds in keeping her youth. She lies in bed one day in ten arising only for a bath and food. No matter how good her health, she does this. And, it goes on to say "if she cannot sleep she simply lies still without thinking." No doubt the efficacy of the treatment lies in the possibility to get along "without thinking." Women who have nothing but themselves to think about must need the one day's respite.

"The Girl of the Period."

Dear Members of the Household: I have for some days past been grievously tempted to plagiarize and give you body and bones of an essay by Maurice Francis Egan in Ave Maria.

I was mad when I had read his essay on the "Girl of the Period," to think that I had not written it myself.

Among other good things he says: "When your professional purveyor of funny things has nothing to say, he says it by bringing out all the old jokes against women; and he creates a false world as a background to his antiquated antics."

Again, "Above all we hear the cry from some of us that the girl of the period is unpractical; she is not prepared for life; she cannot cook like her mother. They said that, too, in '70, but since that time more men have died of drink than of dyspepsia."

I wish that I could place a copy of his essay in the hands of every sneerer and jeerer in the land. Long life to M. F. E., and to all of our champions.

The Bill of Fare.

One could wish, most heartily, that Americans would practice a little common sense in the matter of the bill of fare. We boast of our patriotic independence and then ape, in the silliest fashion, our old world neighbors. Not one out of twenty guests at even a swell society affair, could order a French dinner in France; why should they attempt it in America? We boast, and with reason, of our beautiful language, and smile satisfiedly when we are told that it is fast becoming the diplomatic language of the world. Then we put on our spectacles and struggle with a thing like this:

Menu.

Are we a pack of geese? Doesn't it make one smile to hea rthe American "meenu," "mernu," "mawnu," etc. ad libitum? What unbounded silliness? Why do we thus? Where is the caterer who will have the courage to call a potato, potato, and not pomme de terre, and oysters, oysters, instead of huitres? If we were a nation of linguists instead of the reverse by virtue of our isolation, it would not appear quite so ridiculous. Of course the professional diner-out can master the French contained in a menu card, but why is it better than English then? The "a las" are decorative in a certain sense, and where the French looks imposing the translation does sound silly. The bill of fare chosen for illustration apes the foreign menu in its array of flesh food, out of all proportion to the rest of the list. Americans live a hundred times better than any other people, and one could wish they had sense enough to call things by their English names, and do away with the a la filagree nonsense that signifies nothing but an advertisement of room to let in the top story of a good many heads.

AFTER THE YES.

After the "Yes" has been timidly said,
And she is won, forever and aye,
Then comes the fugitive doubt and the dread;
Fears that the goddess may prove but clay.

After the glory of triumph is past,
One must look where his footsteps tend.
There are precious moments from first to last,
And Lives, like novels, do not thus end.

If women don't succeed in getting husbands, it is not the fault of their multitudinous advisers among both sexes. On the editorial table lies the discussion of Sorosis on this topic, with certain leading thoughts marked by a discriminating friend. Next it is the synopsis of a sermon preached by a Michigan minister on "How to Preserve a Husband's Love." Scattered around in various piles of clippings are numberless additions to the all-absorbing topic: "How to get a husband and how to keep him." We have been fond of saying this accomplishment was not in this progressive age the chief end and aim of woman's existence. Indeed, we have daily proof that "How to get rid of a husband" is just as vital and important a question. Geo. De Maurier has given the briefest recipe in answer to the first, namely: "Feed the brute." The insinuation involved in the question cannot be an entirely pleasant one for the lords to consider. They do not confess that they are "managed" or "preserved," as the case may be. Common sense would say when a woman is self-poised and able to manage herself she is worthy a husband who is just and generous, and also capable of self-management.

Why does Life's artist make his young women embrace their knees in their arms when they are sitting down? Is that the attitude the fashionable young women strikes nowadays?—Boston Herald.

Now-a-days! When did this innocent make his first acquaintance with a young women? Eve sat with her hands about her knees when the angel was hunting for her in the garden.

THE REASON WHY.

Has not everything been said? Has not everything been sung?
Why, then, do we listen still to the changes that are rung?
Oh, because what has been said may be said some better way;
Oh, because what has been sung may be sweeter sung to-day.

Scrap Basket.

All the way to Heaven is Heaven, if men and women will it so.

It is not very difficult to provide varied employment for little children. A very simple thing will amuse them, even better than more elaborate toys. A little thought and ingenuity will enable any mother to supply a sufficient variety with little or no expense. A rag doll, a box of blocks from the carpenter's, pictures pasted in a cloth book, a ball, or a large agate marble to roll, a slate and pencil, pictures to be cut out, (with blunt scissors), are all easily obtained and greatly prized by the little ones.

But there are those, my darling—
Aye, in this very street—
Whose ears have lost the music
Of homeward hast'ning feet,
Oh, pity, and remember
How happy we should be,
To have Someone to watch for,
Coming home to tea.

Lights of all sorts nearly always discharge their combustion products into the air and their effects are not properly estimated by the majority of people. For instance, a single three-foot gas burner (a burner consuming three cubic feet of gas per hour) creates about as much carbonic acid as ten persons. A kerosene lamp of good size may, in this respect, be roughly estimated as equal to six persons; many larger ones are equal to ten or twelve. It will be seen, therefore, that a large supply of air must be insured to render wholesome a room occupied by two or three persons and a lamp at evening.

We all know how the lights burn dim in the crowded church or hall from the poverty of air themselves have created. A physician forbade his delicate daughter to go into crowded rooms to remain for hours, believing her lungs would not withstand the poison in the air. And yet how cheap fresh air is.

It singeth low in every heart, we hear it each and all,—
A song of those who answer not, however we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast, we see them as of yore,—
The kind, the brave, the true, the sweet, who walk with us no more.
More homelike seems the vast Unknown since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard wherever they may fare.

"A fool and his money are parted soon;"
It's a fact both true and funny.
Some girl in society gets the fool,
And his friends distribute the money.

It was Emerson who once said that "what we call our root-and-branch reforms of war, gambling, intemperance, is only medicating the symptoms. We must begin higher up, namely, in education."

"I am ready to be married
I can cut and make a dress;
Mark the linen with the cross stitch;
Mend the lace, that's hardly less
Fine and dainty than a cobweb;
So I dare to tell him, 'yes;'
Mother says a girl may marry,
Who can cut and make a dress."

Gentle one, and may I warn you
It were wise should you inquire,
If the man whom you shall marry
Can split wood to build the fire?
Can he hoe the fam'ly garden?
Can he place a kitchen shelf?
Can he patch a roof that's leaky?
Can he shave himself?

There are over 100 regions in the world where women enjoy the right of suffrage.

A husband in New York made a calculation that he spent five-twenty-fourths of his time in his office, three-twenty-fourths on the cars, two-twenty-fourths lunching and dining at the club, seven-twenty-fourths sleeping, two-twenty-fourths dressing, four-twenty-fourths in recreation, and one-twenty-fourth with his wife and children.

"Ah, love, I would like to listen to you all night," said Clarence, as he rose to go.

Six months after they were married he chanced to stop out fifteen minutes after his hour, and he had his desire gratified.

When the wan winter sunlight smites the pane,
And "tinkle, tinkle," drip the icy eaves,
I dream with joy of spring's reviving rain,
And of the soft unfolding of the leaves.

The excess of women and girls over men and boys in Great Britain is 900,000, an increase of 200,000 in ten years. In Germany the number of women in excess of men is about 1,000,000. In the United States, Canada and Australia the men are in the majority. In this country there are about 1,000,000 more men than women.

(But they are very unevenly distributed).

Would you rather have two men
In love with you?
Or be a man and love two girls
As many fellows do?

Five Ways to Cure a Cold.

1. Bathe the feet in hot water and take a pint of hot lemonade. Then sponge with salt water and remain in a warm room.
2. Bathe the face in very hot water every five minutes for an hour.
3. Snuff up the nostrils hot salt water every three hours.
4. Inhale ammonia or menthol.
5. Take four hours' exercise in the air.

A ten-grain dose of quinine will usually break up a cold in the beginning. Anything that will set the blood in active circulation will do it, whether it be drugs or the use of a bucksaw.—Pharmaceutical Era.

A Good Complexion.

In order to have a clear complexion it must be borne in mind that the quality of the blood and circulation, and hence the healthfulness of the skin, is determined, first, by the materials which are introduced into the system, and, second, by the thoroughness of action of the purifying organs. Proper food in proper quantity, used at judicious intervals, is of utmost importance. People who do little work either of body or brain, should not eat as much as those who work hard. The more vigorously machinery is used, the more oil is needed; and contrariwise, the less work the less oil. So with the human machinery, the more work the more food. The hygenic dietary is of importance to good health, and hence, to a clear complexion; and whoever would have good health, can afford to regulate their habits in consonance therewith.—Ladies Health Journal.

Woman and Formalism.

Most of all is woman imposed upon by formalism—mentally, morally, physically and socially. It has curtailed, narrowed, or abolished utterly her every natural and reasonable right; it has never failed to confront her, whatever the direction she faced, with an irrepressible, dogmatic "Don't!" And this has been continued for such a numberless series of wearying ages that woman has almost grown to feel that she could not possibly have an ambition, a wish, or an impulse which any well-balanced man could tolerate, except in flat defiance of justice, wisdom, or propriety. Man, in fine, egged on and abetted by dogmatic formalism, has called woman his inferior in everything till she has been led to accept it that this characterization describes a fact.—A New York Lawyer.

Parent and Child.

One word of advice or opinion and I have finished. It concerns the necessity for having a reasonable foundation for your demands or requests to your children. Do not test their obedience by foolish or unnecessary commands; be careful always that there is reason in what you request, if you would increase their respect for you. But once having made your request, insist upon obedience. That and truthfulness are the two most important qualities to be discovered and developed by mothers.

"In all things be reasonable," would be, I think, a good motto for mothers to base their training upon; for a child old enough to be trained at all is a reasonable, thinking mortal, with a mind capable of understanding and an intellect competent to appreciate justice; and it is most surely your duty to this mind in miniature that its glimpses of the government of this world shall behold a government founded on truth, liberty, justice and reason.

Parents have proudly told me of sickening battles with their children, will pitted agaist will, till at last the stronger physique gained the mastery, and the child's "will was broken." Such victories are worse than defeats. I have seen a father and his little boy stand pitted against each other, with a look in each face that I could call nothing but hatred; and when I thought of the power of the one and the helplessness of the other, I could not but admire the boy's pluck. There should be no such occasions. The parent stands convicted of utter stupidity in finding himself in any such situation.—Clippings.

Chat.

Welcome, welcome home, Barbara Moss. We who have been with you in your journeyings are glad to find that we are with you yet. I am a little bit cross because you did not visit Ireland, for I love you both—you and Ireland—and I should love to have had you become acquainted just to see what you would think of one another, and furthermore I am pretty sure that you could have suited yourself with a pair of shoes in that dear little, green little spot.

Your shoe experience reminds the writer of an attempt of hers to purchase a spring hat in a little Missouri town some years ago.

AUNTIE T——.

Household department Toledo Bee: Permit me to thank you for the kindly sympathy extended to me in your paper of December 19 last. My own illness and an unusual amount of business care have delayed my acknowledgment, but I trust this will not rob my thanks of any measure of their emphasis.

Believe me, I deeply value the kind words sent to me, and my only regret is that I must so coldly and at such a distance return my thanks.

With good wishes and the kindest regards, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

Coming Engagement of Miss Margaret Mather

In a Delightful Double Bill—The Byrons Next Week—Spiritualists to be Exposed—Dramatic Notes.

For Margaret Mather's appearance at the Wheeler opera house next Thursday, February 11, she lists two plays which are new to the local stage, but which are said to be among the best and most effective she has ever offered for the theater goers' pleasure. When she decided to grant the oft expressed request for more comedy, she determined to get two of the best obtainable and to this end visited London and saw Nance Oldfield, which Charles Reade wrote for Ellen Terry and Which Miss Terry was then presenting with marked success at the Lyceum theater.

It took but a short time for her to secure the American rights for this work of Reade's and then she posted off to Paris where she commissioned Felix, the great artist dressmaker, to prepare costumes and not to mind the expense. To this clever comedy she added James Sheriden Knowles' literary gem, The Love Chase, which belongs to that old and excellent school of English comedies of which The Rivals and She Stoops to Conquer are members.

In each play she had a character study of most excellent breadth, it is said, and in them conjointly has given the theater-going world a new view of her talents and abilities. She has, it is said, surpassed in smoothness of rendition and dramatic finish the comedy work she did in John Tobin's Honeymoon, in which she was markedly successful and added scores of admirers to her already long list. It is in this double bill that she will be seen here February 11. Outside the interest that attaches to the coming of a dramatic star like Miss Mather, and the fact that she is to present new plays, there are other features in the display of costumes, said to be rarely beautiful, and in the presence of a strong company which is headed by Otis Skinner, that well known young actor, and contains the names of Joseph E. Whiting, H. A. Langdon, White Whittlesey, James Cooper, Henry Patterson, Stephen Wright, Josephine Evtinge, Carrie Jamison, Maud Pleasants and Katherine Murray.

Irish Comedians.

Since the withdrawal of Mr. W. J. Scanlan from the stage there have arisen any number of competitors who are convinced that they can capably fill his shoes. A successful Irish comedian makes a great deal of money in the course of a season. Joseph Murphy is to-day the possessor of more available cash assets than any other actor on the American stage, not accepting Joseph Jefferson.

The anxiety to succeed in this popular line of endeavor will thus be readily understood. The latest aspirant for success in Irish comedy is Aubrey Boucicault, a son of the famous playwright and actor. Mr. Boucicault is young, but full of hope. He has formed a combination with Arthur Rehan, a brother of Ada, and the latter will endeavor to convince the public that young Boucicault possesses those stage qualities which made Mr. Scanlan so justly popular.

The Plunger.

Oliver Byron will open a week's engagement at the People's next Monday, in his new play, "The Plunger," about which much has been said. Mr. Byron has spent the greater part of a year in arranging for its production, and is thoroughly pleased with the result. It is a great deal more expensive than any of the former plays and is said to be by far the best thing he ever did in the dramatic line.

His part of Dexter Digit, the Plunger, is particularly fitted to him by the author, and gives him opportunity for showing his well-known abilities. Widow Clover was written expressly for and created by Miss Kate Byron. Her performance is considered finished in every respect. The Widow has opportunities to wear beautiful dresses. All her costumes are imported, and said to be marvels of taste and loveliness.

The company supporting Mr. Byron has been carefully selected, with a determination to get the most competent artist or artiste in his or her particular line, and is said to be one of the most evenly balanced companies on the road. The scenic effects are made a prominent feature of "The Plunger." There are many new and strikingly original ideas. A New York elevated railway train in full motion is one effect.

The station selected for "The Plunger" scene is the Park Place depot. In an illuminated view of the New York Post Office, are the buildings of the New York Times, Morning Journal, Sun, Tribune, and Star offices. This act closes in a violent thunder storm, lightning, thunder and a steady downpour of real water. Other effects, too many to mention, make "The Plunger" a big go.

Mediums Exposed.

A Springfield paper speaks as follows of Hazel the spiritualist exposer, who will be at Wheeler's opera house to-morrow evening:

"Hazel, the famous exposer of spiritualistics fraud, was greeted by a large audience at Black's last night. Mr. Hazel is a clever man—there is no doubt about it. He is bright, quick-witted and talented. The first part of the performance was devoted to mind-reading manifestation, which he claims were genuine. Several well-known Springfield gentlemen were on the stage and acted as committees. The second part of the performance was devoted to an expose of spiritualistic manifestations, slate-writing, cabinet tricks, etc., which Hazel showed were all done by material agencies—in brief, by "tricks." Several well-known spiritualists in the audience were disposed to "talk back" to the lecturer and exposer, and some witty repartee ensued. Hazel denounces all stage mediums as frauds and tricksters. In support of his claim he has issued the following challenge:

Blue Jeans.

In simple idyllic fiction nothing is more effective than Blue Jeans with its pithy wit, crisp philosophy and rustic humor. The simple naturalness of its many characters, the apparently spontaneity of the rustic wit which sparkled in the speech of June, the broad fun, which though often dangerously near burlesque, happily escaped it, the intense interest of some of the melo-dramatic effects, the romantic farce of the plot with its well concealed denouement, the strong cast and admirable arrangement of the accessories and stage business blend to make Blue Jeans a thoroughly enjoyable play.

Summer Opera.

Detroit is to have summer opera on a scale never attempted in this city before. Fred C. Whitney, manager of the Detroit opera house, has taken the matter in hand and will organize a summer amusement company which will build a handsome and easily accessible theater that will just meet the bill. The new playhouse will be modeled after the summer theaters in Berlin, Vienna, Copenhagen, St. Petersburg and other European cities, but will be operated in accordance with American ideas. Manager Whitney promises that only first-class productions will be given.

Dramatic Notes.

Miss Effie Ellsler played Hazel Kirke in New York this week.

Joseph Arthur, author of Blue Jeans and the Still Alarm, is working on another realistic play.

Stuart Robson played to $7,360 at St. Louis last week against Jefferson as a counter attraction.

The starring tower of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew has been suspended owing to a disagreement with J. M. Hill, who now has sole possession of That Girl from Mexico.

The Mountebanks, Gilbert's new opera in two acts, is making a large-sized success in London, notwithstanding the fact that some adverse criticism has been printed against it.

The largest week's business of the season has been done this week by the Boston Howard Athenaeum company at the People's theater. People have been turned away nightly. The engagement will close this evening.

The new comedy which the Pitou company produced in Cincinnati this week is called The Last Straw. It is by Paul Ferrier, and it deals, as most comedies of its class do, with the domestic difficulties of a newly married pair.

Carmencita has returned to New York and seems to be just as great an attraction at Koster & Bial's as before her tour, which was a most successful one. The Spanish students who were with her furnish the music for her dancing.

Margaret Mather is preparing to bring out in the near future an entirely new dramatization of Victor Hugo's famous story of "The Hunch Back of Notre Dame." Her new play is said, by those who have heard it read, to be one of most pleasurable and adequate imaginable. In it she is given opportunity to show strong contrast between her tragedy and comedy work.

Information is given out that Bronson Howard has received $150,000 in royalties for Shenandoah since its first production in New York at the Star theater, September 8, 1889, and its manager's profits have been nearly $150,000. The gross receipts of the play have exceeded $1,000,000. The record is unparalleled in the history of the American drama.

£10,000 a Year, dramatized from Warren's rather heavy book, Ten Thousand a Year, will be produced at the Garden theater, New York, about Washington's birthday, the second week of Richard Mansfield's engagement. It is all comedy. Mr. Mansfield will be able to create another distinct type of eccentric character in Sir Tittlebat Titmouse, the uncouth clerk at Tagrag's shop who suddenly falls into title and fortune. The quaint costumes are of the year 1820.

THE DOINGS IN FINDLAY.

Sports Preparing for Lively Times.

A Cocking Main and Prize Fight on the Boards—Burglars—Damage and Divorce Suits.

Findlay, Feb. 6.—(Special)—John Arbuckle, a laborer, while at work on a scaffold on St. Michael's Catholic church yesterday, fell a long distance to the ground, sustaining many painful injuries about the head, but no bones were broken.

Cocking Main.

It is said a cocking main has been arranged between the sporting boys of this city and Circleville, O. The date is between the 10th and the 15th of this month, and the place will be somewhere near this city. It is said there are over $500 staked on the result of the different contests.

Another Prize Fight.

Another slugging match is being arranged to take place in this city in the near future. The principals are reported to be from Pittsburg and Bellaire. The place of the mill will be decided later. Findlay sports are afraid it will be another fake, like the recent fight at Deshler.

House Burglarized.

Burglars ransacked the residence of Mrs. Henry Fack on Thursday evening, carrying off a number of articles of wearing apparel. Her son-in-law drove the fellows away at the point of a Winchester rifle. Mrs. Fack received a check for $3,000 for life insurance, and these miscreants thought she was foolish enough to have the money in the house.

Damage Suit On Trial.

Great interest has been taken in the damage suit of Ella Johnson, one of the girls injured in the Hotel Marvin gas explosion several months ago, against A. E. Marvin, the owner of the building, for about $14,000. The argument of the several lawyers is to be finished to-day and the case given to the jury.

Small Assignment.

William Fees & Son, who were running a shoe store on North Main street, made an assignment yesterday for the benefit of their creditors. The assets are placed at $2,000, the liabilities not named.

Divorce Wanted.

Josephine Holrerstott has filed her petition for a legal separation from her husband. They were married in Marion county in September, 1876, and have two children. Failure to provide and gross neglect are given as the causes.

Kate B. Sherwood,

Past National President of the Woman's Relief Corps, states:

"Having contracted a severe bronchial trouble while in the White Mountains, I have since been subject to frequent attacks. I can truly say that I have experienced more prompt, pleasant and enduring relief from the use of DAY'S BRONCHIAL CURE than any other, and most cordially recommend it to all suffering from similar affection."

AN ALARMING CONDITION.

And How to Surely Overcome It.

"If I Could Only Sleep!"

Sleeplessness is a rapid road to the insane asylum.

Men allow care, anxiety or business troubles to drive sleep from their eyelids, while women, with unstrung nerves and excitable temperments, pass hours upon hours each night in sleepless, restless misery.

What wonder that there are so many shattered nerves, tired brains and debilitated bodies, when we consider the thousands who pass sleepless or disturbed nights, and rise mornings feeling indescribably miserable, dragged out, with tired limbs, exhausted energies, nerveless and ambitionless.

It is maddest folly to use opium, morphine or chloral. THERE IS ONE SURE WAY TO CURE SLEEPLESSNESS—use Dr. Greene's Nervura. This wonderful remedy is nature's own sleep producer, and is perfectly harmless, being made from pure vegetable medicines.

"WOULD GIVE A FORTUNE FOR A NIGHT'S SLEEP!"

It SOOTHES, CALMS and QUIETS the weakened, irritable and over-wrought nerves, PRODUCING PERFECT REPOSE AND REFRESHING NATURAL SLEEP; at the same time it builds up the shattered nerves, and gives renewed life, strength and vigor to the system. Use it, you who are sleepless.

"I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura as being a good remedy for SLEEPLESSNESS. Having been troubled in this way for three years, and objecting seriously to opiates. I HAVE USED DR. GREENE'S NERVURA WITH GREAT BENEFIT. I have also recommended the Nervura to many of my friends, who have been much benefited by its use.

Chronic Diseases.

CATARRH, so very common in this climate, is not a local disease as is generally supposed, but is constitutional, showing itself locally in some of the mucous membranes of the body, and to remove it permanently you have to remove the cause. In fact the only way of treating any disease is by removing the cause that produces it, and nature will do the rest. This is the manner in which we treat all diseases under our specialties and the secret of our success is in the ability to determine the starting point or cause of your trouble.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS OR LOSS OF MANHOOD, AND ERRORS OF YOUTH, POSITIVELY CURED.

PILES permanently cured without the use of a knife or any surgical operation whatever. POSITIVELY NO CASE TAKEN THAT CANNOT BE CURED.

POISONED BLOOD.

A TOLEDO MAN'S PALATE AND NASAL BONE REPLACED BY SILVER SUBSTITUTES.

A Mistreated Case of Blood Poisoning of Five Years' Standing Completely Cured After it Had Produced Sores on All Parts of the Body.

While out on the edge of Toledo in Adams township the other day a farmer friend called the attention of the reporter to a neighbor of his whom he said had a silver palate and a silver septum for a nasal bone. The scribe never having known of such a case, asked his granger friend if he was really in earnest. "That's as true as you live," said he, "but you newspaper fellers are so durned skeptical you had better go and ask him fur yourself."

Acting on the suggestion of his friend the writer started toward the neighboring garden farm where Oscar Harlett, the fellow with the silver palate and nasal bone was employed. Mr. Harlett proved to be a very communicative son of toil and assured the quill driver that their neighbor was correct in saying that he had a silver palate and nose bone. In answer to a further question Oscar said that about five years ago he contracted a disease that resulted in blood poisoning. At first he neglected it but at length went to a doctor who, after taking all his wages for several months finally declared that the poison could never be entirely eliminated from his system. Young Harlett then became thoroughly alarmed as he said to the scribe and treated with three other doctors one after another without permanent benefit.

After poor Oscar had spent all of his earnings and part of his savings on family doctors he then treated with a traveling quack, who went to the different towns because he could get no business where he was known. During all this time the deadly poison was coursing through his body, which was rapidly becoming covered with blotches, and his palate and nasal bone were slowly but surely rotting away. About this time Harlett, acting on the advice of a friend, went to Hot Springs, Ark., but his malady was so deep rooted that it would not yield even to the boiling process. The poor unfortunate country youth then came home, as he thought, to die a miserable death.

During Oscar's absence the farmer where he had worked and made his home, read of remarkable cures in cases of blood poisoning and hereditary blood taints. Some of these remarkable cures had been performed at the great government hospital centers of Europe and still more recent cases were cited as being cured by one of these same European hospital specialists, who while making a pleasure tour of this country had liked it so well that he determined to practice his profession in "the land of the free and the home of the brave." He read that this European specialist had purchased a splendid home and other valuable property in Toledo where he had located. Farmer Shrop accordingly insisted upon young Harlett treating with this European specialist, and so hapless Oscar repaired to his offices on Summit street, between Oak and Orange, and started treatment. Armed with a diet chart of what to eat and drink, and specific vegetable blood remedies to act in harmony with the food prescribed, Oscar Harlett began to improve rapidly, and in just six months after he began treating with Dr. Kalkhoff, the European specialist, he went forth a well man, and has since married his employer's daughter. The doctor supplied Oscar with a silver palate and nasal septum to take the place of those destroyed and now as he said to the reporter he is as "happy as the day is long."

MOCKETT, THE CLOTHIER.

IF YOU SEE IT IN OUR AD IT'S SO.

We aim to tell the truth. Whate'er we promise, that we always do. In your dealing with us there can be no misunderstanding. No shuffling, no shadow of ambiguity can rest upon them.

WE ARE EVEN AND DIRECT WITH ALL.

It may take a longer time to erect a business on these principles, but when the fabric is once reared upon such a foundation it is invulnerable, and nothing can shake it from its base. That our name is already recognized as the synonym of worth and honesty is plainly proven by the fact that a certain clothing house is in the habit of telling our country customers who wander into their place (through mistake) and ask if that is Mockett's, "that it is!" Having no name or reputation of their own, of any worth, they practice their Jugglery upon the ignorance of strangers, and by wilful lying and misrepresentation would reap the fruits we have won and earned. If these honorable gentlemen are ashamed of the names they inherit from their fathers, let them petition the legislature of this glorious republic to change them—not, sully the good name of an honest man by using it as a cloak with which they may conceal their own contemptible trickery. "Gentleman, assume a virtue if you have it not." A word to the wise is sufficient.
